Village fun for all on sunny Canada Day

Canada Day celebrations in Glen Williams got underway after the singing of O Canada and a few speeches by our local politicians. A special guest for the occasion was a member of the RCMP, seen here in the background.

What more appropriate occasion to wave the Canadian flag than on Canada's 118th birthday?

Margaret Eggleton was one of the hits at Canada Day in Glen Williams posing as our Queen. She was in the parade and later made a speech telling everyone how glad she was she could make the trip to town.

Two Ballinfad women shared the honors Saturday as the parade wound its way through their village.

It was a difficult task requiring lots of blowing power and the ability to choose just the right type of watermelon seed. These young folk tried their skills at the watermelon splitting contest Monday in Glen Williams. It was all part of the Canada Day games organized for families to help celebrate the occasion.

The Kerr family provided the music in Ballinfad. Daddy played bass, momma played key boards, Christine sang lead vocals and Jeff played drums.

Dan McNiven represented the Ballinfad Rangers in the Ballinfad parade.

You steer and I'll work the gas pedal. David Metcalfe, 3 years, teamed up with his father Paul and drove their tractor in the Ballinfad parade.
