

More Wildwood stops

Regional councillors approved four traffic bylaw changes for Halton Hills, including the erection of four way stop signs at Wildwood Road and Confederation Street.

Councillors also approved the erection of three-way stop signs at Cobblehill Road and Story Drive, at Cindy Place and Wildwood Road, and at Eighth Line and Wildwood Road.

Restricting the speed limit of vehicles on Sideroad 22 to 60 kilometers per hour from 80 kilometers per hour, was also approved.

Crib players wanted

The Men's Industrial Cribbage League starts Monday at 8 p.m. at the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 120 in Georgetown. New members are welcome. So come out, or call Don 877-6343 or Archie 877-6585.

Gas room for wells

A chlorine gas room is to be constructed at Acton's Fourth Line and Davidson Wells. Simcoe Engineering Ltd. will oversee the $30,000 project's construction and equipment modifications.

Improve paint bid

Two bids to re-paint Georgetown's water tower were rejected by Halton regional staff and the job is to be retendered.

One of the companies making a bid didn't follow the proper procedure after they failed to drop off a tender deposit.

The other company made a bid that was over the approved budget for the job. The public works department wants to have the painting done for $50,000.

Region play blackjack

Regional councillors will be gambling for charity Oct. 26 in Burlington.

Halton region approved $750 to help the United Way run a Monte Carlo night.

The $750 will be refunded and profits made from the night will go towards the three United Way agencies in Halton.

Five regional councillors will be attending the event to show their support, including chairman Peter Pomeroy.

Do-si-do classes

Learn modern square dancing with the Pine Valley Squares. The popular group are offering two free nights of dance lessons Sept. 11-18.

They're getting together at 8 p.m. at Stewarttown Hall. For more information, call 878-6366 or 877-9317.

Wetlands to be acquired

Natural Resources Minister Vincent Kerrio announced approval last week of a multi-year project of the Credit Valley Conservation Authority to acquire wetland areas situated in the Credit River watershed.

Wetland and headwaters perform important water management roles and will be acquired by the Conservation Authority through donation.

The costs of the ten year project are for the appraisal, legal and survey costs associated with the project and are estimated to be $150,000. Subject to availability of funding provincial grants will be contributed to the multi-year project.

City meets country

An Acton woman collided with a trailer and a trailer being pulled by a tractor on Sideroad 5 at the Town Line Aug. 22 at 4:14 p.m.

The tractor was pulling its load at 10 km per hour when the woman attempted to pass at 65 km per hour.

She hit the trailer and the trailer causing a total of $4,300 damage to them, police said. An estimated $7,000 was done to her 1983 Mazda.

Disconnected in crash

A man from Shallow Lake, Ontario suffered minimal injuries when his 1980 Ford hit a telephone pole on Sideroad 22 and the Third Line Aug. 26 at 8 a.m. He was travelling too fast and entered a ditch to slow down, police said.

After this he crossed the road and hit a telephone pole. Police estimate $10,000 damage was done to the car and $500 damage was done to the pole.

Glen co-op gets a break

Herald Staff

The builder of Georgetown's Glen Mills Co-op will receive a reduction in the lot levies imposed by Halton region.

Glen Mills Housing Co-operative Inc., asked for and received a regional capital contribution reduction of 50 per cent.

Each of the 26 units to be built on land bordering on River Drive and Mountainview Road North will now be hit with a levy of $1,131.

The money is paid by the developer to help to pay for costs such as sewage, roads, landfill, police and administration.

The 50 per cent reduction rate is not new to Halton. Other co-op housing developments have also received reductions.

The non-profit housing project allows for government assistance to families who would otherwise spend in excess of 27 per cent of their income for housing costs.

Armstrong re-aligned

Luckily Armstrong Avenue at Sinclair Avenue is not the busiest street in Halton Hills because its location is high atop a weakening slope adjacent to the Credit River.

The road, storm and sanitary services are threatened by the potential collapse of this steep unprotected slope.

To solve this instability problem, the existing Armstrong Avenue is to be realigned. The Credit Valley Conservation Authority is involved in the revegetation of the bank, installation of slope drains and the stabilization of an existing outlet structure.

The Authority and Town of Halton Hills are sharing the $87,443 cost of these works.

Flexible schooling

For the fourth year, the Co-operative Re-entry to Work (CREW) program's being offered at Lester B. Pearson High School in Burlington.

Debate on vet clinic

A new veterinary clinic on Tenth Line, across from the Georgetown Golf and Country Club and up from Sideroad 17, came under councillors' scrutiny Monday night.

Councillors were concerned the Committee of Adjustment made the decision to allow the new use in this industrially zoned area, which doesn't allow for veterinary clinics.

In general committee, councillors voted not to appeal the Committee's decision, but authorized staff to meet with Committee members to discuss overlapping of authority.

We feel that the Committee of Adjustment had perhaps extended the authority in that we look at this as not a minor variance but as a change of land use," town planner Ian Keith said.

KEEPS THEM SMILING

Sharing sweet memories Sunday afternoon were about 45 war veterans from Sunnybrook General Hospital. At the Georgetown Branch 120 of the Royal Canadian Legion were (left to right)

Richard Cridland, Nellie Bell, Gilbert Sheppard, Jean Thomas, Oliver Bald and Liz McNeilly. The gentlemen, all World War 2 vets, were brought to Georgetown by bus.

Ottawa conference

Insurance was major topic of municipal representatives

Herald staff

Two resolutions brought to the Association of Municipalities of Ontario conference in Ottawa by the Halton Hills delegates didn't make it to the floor.

"But they'll be going to the director's meeting in December," Halton Hills Coun. Dave Whiting said.

The town has no delegates on the AMO board and has to rely on lobbying other representatives to air its resolutions.

At the Association of Counties and Regions and the Ontario Small Urban Municipalities conferences, the two Halton Hills resolutions got overwhelming support, Coun. Whiting said.

The town's first resolution recommends handicapped parking permits be uniform across the province so that the handicapped don't end up getting tickets in other municipalities with different permit systems.

The second resolution asks that the province be responsible for holding public meetings when making provincial policy changes. This resolution was prompted by Halton region's unfavorable experience when the province changed its policies on aggregates and the region hosted public meetings which got a lot of flak.

Insurance was a major topic of discussion at the AMO conference, Coun. Whiting said.

Although the town has its own insurance coverage, the councillor can foresee the day when Halton Hills will go for a package deal with the region for insurance.

"Eventually, we're not going to give permits, because they're suing the towns," Coun. Whiting said. "It's going to take a year or two, but that's what's coming. That came out pretty clearly."

Halton's municipalities are going to get together for insurance coverage, just as they do now for debenturing (borrowing).

What do you like best at the Georgetown Fall Fair?

JENNIFER NEUHAM, 11, said she liked the rides.

"Because they're fun. I like the green ride," she said, pointing. A regular at the fair, she doesn't get sick on the upside down rides.

NANCY MONTIGNY, 10, of Georgetown likes the games best.

"They're fun and you win prizes," the red head said.

ANDY REICHLMAYR, 11, likes watching the games.

"I haven't tried any yet this year. I won a whole bunch of prizes last year, like a stuffed snake," he said.

CAROLYN CRAWFORD, 13, of Georgetown, likes the rides, especially the Swinger.

"I'm going to go on it, if my dad buys me tickets," she said.

JASON McNEIL, 10, of Brampton likes playing the games at the fair.

"I like playing the frog in game. It looks neat. I came last year too. It was fun," he said.

Good bye to the Kennedys

By WINIFRED SMITH

Herald Correspondent

BALLINAFAD - A very pleasant evening was spent Aug. 28 when Mr. and Mrs. Del Linstead invited their close neighbors on the Sixth Line to their home for a buffet dinner.

It was a farewell gathering in honor of their neighbors Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Kennedy and daughter Kathy, who are leaving shortly for Alberta.

After the delicious meal a social time was enjoyed. The Kennedys were presented with a beautiful framed picture of their home.

Baked goods at harvest fair

Come and spend a day in the country this autumn and take part in the "Harvest Fair" activities at the Ontario Agricultural Museum Sept. 15.

Displays, demonstrations and exhibits representing an 1890's fall fair will be featured, along with prize-winning entries of baked goods, preserves, garden and field crops.

Discover grooming and judging techniques of various livestock, including sheep, cattle and horses.

The museum is located five kilometers west of Milton. Take highway #01 exit 320B or 312 north. Admission is $2.50 for adults, students $1.50, children $1, seniors $1.25 and a family rate of $8.00. The museum is open until October 14, daily 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Old fashioned country fun awaits you in the celebration of "Harvest Fair" rain or shine.

Industrial base could be higher

By DAVE ROWNEY

Herald Staff

When it comes to squeezing tax dollars from industry, Halton region can't compete with areas like Hamilton or Mississauga.

Treasurer Joe Rinaldo told regional councillors last Wednesday that Halton has a different ratio of commercial-industrial base.

The finance department was presenting a preliminary budget report on sewage, water and solid waste costs in 1986.

Business experts can help you with advice

By MAGGIE HANNAH Herald Special

The Halton small business advisory group is actively seeking clients.

Group chairman William McAlister said the group is comprised of retired business executives who have the experience and knowledge to offer advice and assistance to small businesses.

In the past year the group helped 62 small companies during face-to-face meetings and a further 50 in telephone calls.

In the coming year, the group plans to hold meetings once a month in each of the region's four municipalities rather than asking clients to come to their meetings in regional headquarters on Friday mornings. This will make it easier for business people to avail themselves of the group's volunteer service, Mr. McAlister said.

The group has used a government grant to finance a major advertising campaign to promote their service throughout the region. They want small businesses to know what expertise is available to them.

Mr. McAlister said he is "disenchanted" with what is happening with both levels of government relative to the small business world.

Everyone has heard how presentations are being made to entice Toyota to build a plant in various locations. Mr. McAlister condemned all the fuss being made to get one factory in one location to hire 300 people.

But nothing is being done for the small business that hires three people. It is the backbone of the community but small business is completely on its own.

Mr. McAlister asked councillors to tell their constituents that the group's service is available. There is no need to try to go it alone when advice is available, he said.

Registration for aquatics and youth and adult programs has begun. For more information, please refer to your brochure or call our department at 877-5185, ext. 260, 219.

CORN-CHEESE BARBECUE

- 2 tbsp. butter
- 3/4 lb. ground beef
- 2 tbsp. chopped green pepper
- 1/4 c. finely chopped onion
- 2 tsp. chopped celery
- 1/2 cup chili sauce
- 3 tbsp. chopped dill pickle
- 2 c. whole kernel corn, drained
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/8 tsp. pepper
- 1 c. shredded cheddar cheese
- 2 tsp. butter, softened
- 4 sandwich buns, halved

In skillet melt butter. Add beef, green pepper, onion and celery; cook until meat is browned. Stir in chili sauce, pickle, corn, salt and pepper; simmer until corn is heated through. Add cheese; heat, stirring constantly until cheese melts. Spread butter on buns, toast in moderate oven and fill with corn cheese mixture.
