Hardware plan delays

The Home Hardware application for Guelph Street and Sinclair Avenue in Georgetown is being held up another week by the town's planning department.

Taxis prepare for a booming Christmas

One business that is going to profit from stricter drinking and driving laws is the taxi business. Willie Wilkinson believes he is providing a much-needed service to the community in more ways than one.

He is part owner of Halton Hills Taxi and has watched the need for his cabs increase steadily as the campaign against drinking and driving has been strengthened. Now that stricter penalties are enforced, he predicts that more people will be taking cabs.

He is also aware that many people will continue to drink and drive. "Maybe it will take a few people to get caught before more people start taking cabs," he said.

Halton Hills Taxi is trying to cut down on the number of drunk drivers by improving their service in the evenings. That means getting to pick up points quicker and by having more cabs on the road.

The company has 11 cabs and six or seven are out on a Friday night. "It's important not to keep them waiting too long or they might decide to take their cars," he said.

The increase in business means more part-time cab drivers are used.
