

Knighly news

Obviously these children have had lots of experience building sand castles on the beach. It probably helped them when it came to a Georgetown Library March Break program where they were able to make castles out of paper, wood and stone. The following are the winners of the castle contest, announced at the library Friday: (left to right)

Power 'works' for GDHS club

By RICH CHIOVITTI

The GDHS grade 12 marketing club has begun to carry out its activities for this semester.

The marketing club is a member of the Marketing Education Clubs of Canada Association (MECCA), which is an affiliate of the Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECCA).

The committee this semester includes: Pete Rasanen, president; Brent Phee, vice-president; Petrina Plamer, secretary; Mike Hurley, treasurer; Cindy Baker, parliamentarian; and Rich Chiovititi, reporter.

MECCA is a student organization designed to develop programs of leadership and personal development and like all clubs and organizations, MECCA has its own creed, tagline, motto, colours and goals.

The creed is a lengthy one that each student is required to learn. It

CAS conflict

An orientation meeting planned for new Halton Children's Aid Society volunteers, foster parents, adoptive parents and staff members that was scheduled for April 2 has been cancelled, due to a scheduling conflict.

The annual meeting of the Halton C.A.S. will take place at The Oakville Centre beginning at 7 p.m. April 2. The next orientation meeting will take place at the Halton C.A.S. offices at 467 Speers Road, Oakville from 7 - 10 p.m. May 7. Anyone interested in learning more about the agency is welcome to attend the session.

deals with doing your best and developing your individual self.

The tagline is "Developing Future Leaders for Marketing and Distribution". The motto is "Power works with ease; weakness frets continuously". The colours are blue and gold, suggesting sincerity, genuineness, and crowing success which comes to one who lives usefully and wisely.

The goals are leadership development, social intelligence, vocational understanding, and civic consciousness. These deal with learning how to be a leader and a follower, gaining a basic knowledge of poise and social graces needed in our society, acquiring a first-hand knowledge of merchandising, salesmanship and the opportunities available in their chosen careers, and recognizing their obligations to the community in which they live.

Activities for this semester include the magazine campaign. The theme this year is to "Catch the Spirit". Marketing students will be creating posters and such around this theme.

The students and their teacher Mr. Charles Genore are also making plans for a social event with DECCA students from New York which is part of the MECCA promotion. The MECCA and DECCA students will travel to Ottawa together and spend a weekend of white water rafting.

The marketing club was also a part of program night held several weeks ago at the high school. That's the start of things for the grade 12 marketing students this semester. At the end of the term I'll report on these events as well as others. Until then, GDHS students remember: 2-1!

Halton Hills Arts Council

Local artists are helping out an agency in Halton Hills. The YMCA will be holding their 7th art auction May 2 at Holy Cross church auditorium.

Organizer Jane Fogal has been arranging for artists such as Carol Black and Grace Knight to put up their works for auction at a discounted price. Look for more information soon about the auction and these participating artists in this column. Tickets for the auction are available at the Y office, 89 Mountainview Road South, or phone the office at 877-6163.

"The Trouble With Growing Up Is..." is going on the road. Halton Children's Aid Society is hosting this thought-provoking musical on the transition from childhood to adulthood in Oakville April 2.

Originally staged at the John Elliott Theatre in Georgetown early this year, the multi-media show will be at The Oakville Centre with The Edgar James Company, Jim Broughton, Victor Hanson and Dianne Ticknor.

Tickets are $5 and are available by advance purchase only from the Halton Children's Aid Society at 878-2375 or 844-8211. The award-winning cartoonist Steve Nease, creator of "Pud" will have an exhibition of his cartoon strips up at the show.

What would you put into an arts policy for the town? The Halton Hills Arts Council has organized a forum to brainstorm for developing such a policy April 23. They've invited councillors and other members of the community to join in at the Cultural Centre Gallery on Church Street in Georgetown between 7 and 9 p.m.

A request for $1,500 by the Halton Hills Arts Council last week is to be considered by town councillors at their March 22 budget committee meeting.

The Arts Council wants the money to help finance a needs-assessment survey asked for by the town last month. The Arts Council is also asking the province to contribute equally toward the cost of this survey and is putting up the remaining third from its coffers.

"We are not quite sure, really, what such a needs-assessment survey involves and whether our interpretation will be satisfactory to the town," Arts Council member Ralph Ursel said last week.

He's hoping further discussions with the recreation department and councillors will make that clear. An outside consultant is to be hired to undertake this project, and will give impartiality to it, Mr. Ursel said. The process of finding a consultant has already begun.

The needs-assessment survey is the first step in establishing an arts policy for Halton Hills. Earlier attempts to set up a citizens committee which would develop an arts policy under town auspices was thwarted by the town. Councillors set the Arts Council in this direction instead.

Mr. Ursel was asked if the Arts Council was happy about going through with the needs-assessment survey by Coun. Norm Elliott.

"I think so. We were a little disappointed about not having a citizens committee do a lot of the digging without having to get an outside consultant, but I think we'll arrive at the same point," Mr. Ursel replied.

Give a student that first big break.

Give them a summer job.

Every summer, students provide a wealth of talent, knowledge and ingenuity that every employer can tap. As an employer, you will benefit from the energy and enthusiasm students bring to their summer jobs. The students in turn will gain the experience so valuable to entering the working world.

Of course students are willing to do just about any sort of work available, but ideally, they would like to find employment related to their field of study. This would help ease the transition from school to work, and help eliminate the "no experience/no job" bias that they may face when seeking full time employment. Hiring students makes good business sense. For every type of job you can offer, there's a student more than willing to work.
