Tickets going fast for Summerfest '86

By GRETCHEN DAY
Herald Special
SATURDAY NIGHT IS SOLD OUT!
Due to the tremendous success of the Arts Council's Summerfest Theatre over the past five years, tickets for the June 21 performance of this year's production, The Saloonkeeper's Daughter, is sold out.

But don't despair! There are still tickets available for June 19 and 20 evening performances. As in the past, your $10 admission includes a delicious, light meal, with bar refreshments available, plus a hilarious musical melodrama. Tickets may be purchased at Ensign Flats, 9 Wesleyan St., 873-0100 or call 877-4078.

Of course, you, the audience, must come in full voice, prepared

Know when to stop

A multi-way stop sign is going up on Longfield and Orville Roads in Acton, despite advice from the town's engineering department.

Town councillors are, however, removing the stop from the Churchill and Wescott Roads intersection nearby.

"There's no doubt about it in my mind, to approve this motion is to approve a political decision. We made a political decision when the stop signs went up on Churchill Road," Coun. Pam Sheldon said.

Brought forward by Couns. Norman Elliott and Gerald Rennie, the motion followed on the heels of a petition signed by 90 Longfield Road residents that asked for stop signs.

Wes Palmer, a Longfield Road resident, told councillors speeding is a problem on his street, a problem accentuated by the lack of stop signs. He asked for a stop sign at Orville Road to discourage use of Longfield as a throughway.

to hiss at Manny Rash, the villain (Hans Rodenburgh), cheer the saloonkeeper, Red White (Gord McLeod), whistle at Lily, his daughter (Jan Hillier) and the saloon girls, Cinnamon Hickey (Marlene Johnston), Sally Forth (Hazel Gorin) and Molly Bolt (Margaret Eggleton), holler at Parson Kindly (Ken Gorin) and Charity, his daughter (Nanci McNeil), yell at Grimy Geezer, the prospector (Phil Brennan) and Blackie White (Jeff Gillies), boo Seedy Shlepper, Manny's stooge (Marie Cleaton) and cheer the hero, stupid yet stalwart Rusty Wilts (Bob Gelaznikas) - all according to musical cues, of course.

Vera Macdonald, fresh from directing Georgetown Little Theatre's successful 'How The Other Half Loves' and starring brilliantly in Globe Production's 'Li'l Abner', is directing this crazy melodrama.

No Arts Council Production would be complete without talented Ralph Ursel as producer and musical director.

All of the zany antics are somehow sorted out and well choreographed by June Gosling.

Needless to say, the crew has had a busy time designing and building sets, organizing lighting, finding props, making costumes - all in preparation for opening night.

Be sure not to miss this delightful musical, The Saloonkeeper's Daughter.

NOTES ABOUT THE ARTS

Questionnaire: When approached, take the time to fill in a questionnaire to help in the Development of Community Arts and Entertainment. Guidelines for Halton Hills. When tabulated, the results of this questionnaire, plus the needs expressed at the public Arts Forum in April, 'Growing in a Growing Community', will be the basis upon which an Arts Policy for Halton Hills will be established.

Come on in!

It doesn't hurt to dress up when you're invited to an open house in Stewarttown. Christine Willows, 11, found her fancy jacket upstairs in the costume room of the new Georgetown Little Theatre building, formerly Exequesing Community

Hall. Everyone was invited to the theatre club's open house and lots showed up Saturday for a tour of the building and a bit of history about the Little Theatre group. (Herald photo)

Glen residents concerned with development plan for 43 homes

Glen Williams residents packed the council chambers Monday night to voice their concerns about a development planned for their community.

Meagan Developments Ltd., owned by Georgetown's Ab Tennant, wants to put up 43 single family homes with piped municipal water and private septic disposal systems north of Cindy Place. That's at Part Lot 21, Con. 9, east of Eighth Line and the abandoned CNR line, and north of Wildwood Road. A public meeting about the proposal lasted two hours.

Homes in Meagan Meadows are to be built in two phases, with the first phase being 21 homes and the second, 22 homes. Each residential lot would be about one and a half acres minimum in size.

Three studies have already been done: a storm water management study, a traffic impact study and a hydrogeological study. All were done by Cliphsham Consulting Engineers Ltd.

Fweelde Street resident John Minns questioned whether there would be adequate water pressure to supply these homes without a pumping station.

Bob Cliphsham said a loop connected from Wildwood to Erin Street creates the water pressure required. If Glen residents want to hook onto the water main that will travel along Wildwood Road, they will be able to, at their expense.

Lawyer Bert Arnold said that if the water supply of any area residents is interrupted because of the water main construction, the region is responsible for providing these residents with water, at the region's expense.

Frontage on these homes varies from a minimum of 59 to 179 feet. Wildwood Road resident Tut Harrison said he has no objection to the development.

"I think we should have it. I welcome it as an asset to our municipality, but it should not be a burden to us taxpayers," Mr. Harrison said.
