

The Difference

SETS ITS PEOPLE

Simon Willis is a technician in the production engineering department. A seven year employee with Varian, he builds and maintains test equipment for production lines, particularly for power supply products.

Dr. Man Wong is a former resident of Georgetown who works in the research and development section of Varian as a project engineer. One product his department is working on is for extra high frequency satellite communication microwave tubes.

Betty Kristy (back) and Cindy Paulin are the two employees you'll see first when you enter the Varian plant by the main entrance. There are 250 active extension numbers for the receptionists to handle.
