

Snowman and a blizzard part of emergency plan

Everyone's invited to take part in an emergency training exercise at the Georgetown District High School March 12. Called "Snowman", the exercise will transform the high school cafeteria into an evacuation centre for victims of a pretend blizzard.

The emergency exercise needs participants of all ages and from all organizations to drop in and act as evacuees or victims.

The exercise takes place between 7 and 9 p.m. and will help train those persons coordinating or working in evacuation centres during a real emergency, like Red Cross, St. John Ambulance, volunteer radio groups, Regional Health and Social Services departments.

Burlington, Oakville, Milton and Halton Hills all will be holding an exercise on the same night.

Halton Hills Outlook

Special education students in Karen Harrison's class had a yummy treat on Shrove Tuesday. They get to make and munch pancakes in class. Enjoying the treat were (left to right) Philip Leslie, 12, John Payton, 19, Tom May, 10, and Scott Fitzgerald, 12. John is a co-op student who helps out at Harrison Public School.
