

SPLASH! Sun shines on wet n' wild boaters

The start of the Crazy Boat Race lived up to its name Saturday as the entrants poured into the Credit River at the sound of the gun blast. The race featured a variety of boats - many of which didn't quite make it in one piece to the finish line. A large crowd was on hand both at the start and the finish to take in the annual event. The water level wasn't too high and many boats had to be pushed through some shallow water.

One of the first boats in the water in this year's Crazy Boat Race was this double shark type craft guided by a mannequin. It seems to have fared well after the rough and tumble start many boats had. Weather was great for Saturday's event which was held by the Lions Club to raise funds for multiple sclerosis.

The finish of Saturday's Crazy Boat Race proved to be tricky for most as the low water level made for a rocky ride. Many seafarers, like these hearty souls, had to abandon their crafts and cross the line under the bridge under old fashioned man-power.

The "Banana Split" receives pre-race preparations before the Crazy Boat Race Saturday. Competitors came from various regions to take part in the annual race for multiple sclerosis. This crew came from Hexton, Ont. Front - Joseph Moore, behind him is John Healy and stapling them in is Michael Barnhart. Curious onlookers lined the route which finished under the bridge across from Preston's Lucky Dollar store.

Paddling for their life these Crazy Boat Race entrants are attempting to keep their craft on track shortly after the start of the race Saturday. The entrants featured a variety of crafts ranging from a huge spider, to a scaled down version of an old train engine to a biting alligator boat.

The crew of "The Big Pink Turkey" were all smiles before the start of the Crazy Boat Race Saturday. The Pink Turkey did manage to negotiate the race and finish but the palm tree which adorned the ship was uprooted. Left to right is Jackie Carlo, Allyson Tracey, Angela Daugherty, Debbie Sibbald and Mich McEachern.

Taking it easy at the end of the race is the crew of this huge rubber craft which is being guided to shore by its able crew. The race route was crammed with amused spectators Saturday as the weather allowed for a clear vision of the entire race.
