Electronic imagery and computerized equipment are just two of the changes photographer Jim Fishback has noticed since he first opened his photography business in Georgetown 17 years ago.

"In 1970, color photography was good but not permanent," Mr. Fishback said. "Today color photographs are almost as permanent as color in any printed matter."

Mr. Fishback's services include wedding photography, custom framing, matting and special finishes, restoration of old photographs, oil paintings and fine china and camera repair and instructions on camera use. His shop on King Street is a complete family business with his wife Carolyn and his three children Julie, 15, Rachel, 11, and David, 10, taking part in the operation.

"Julie is starting to do some of the typing and helps out in general ways," said Mr. Fishback. "Rachel enjoys putting wedding albums together, while David serves as doorman and back-up telephone secretary."

Mr. Fishback said one of his strongest interests is designing and building. Last Christmas he designed a bunk bed for his son which included built-in bookshelves and a desk. He has also built a garage, his largest project.

The Fishbacks are members of the Maple Avenue Baptist Church, providing them with many opportunities to get involved with the Georgetown community.

Mr. Fishback is chairman of the Church's boys' club, the Christian Service Brigade and his wife Carolyn is involved with the girls' club, Pioneer Girls.

"This is one way we can have an influence for good in our community," Mr. Fishback said.

Tidy Car offers drivers a good feeling about vehicle

At Tidy Car, the motto of the owner Chris Bydevaate is to "give the customer the best possible service and make them feel good about their vehicles."

The firm on 265 Guelph Street has gone from cleaning automobiles to a full protection service, said Mr. Bydevaate. There is a staff of three: Manager Audrey and Technicians Alex and Andy.

The following are some of the products and services provided by Tidy Car: rustproofing, preserve-a-shine, upholstery guard, interior cleaning, waxing, sunroofs, window tinting, car truck accessories, roof racks, deck lid racks, all deezee products, seat covers and running boards. Some of the newer products and services are roof racks and decklid racks, box liners and pass through windows.

James S. Jones and Son Funeral Home take personal approach to service

A more casual, personal approach to funeral services is one of the changes noted by James S. Jones and Son Funeral Home, Georgetown.

The business, which began over 40 years ago, has changed considerably, Mr. Jones said. "Once we knew most of the families we served and the dealings were on a 'neighborly basis,'" he said. "Now the contact with each family and the requirements may well depend on their previous involvements with us."

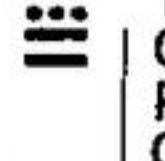

Mr. Jones said he continues to try to provide "a very personal service" and he is active in the community as a member of the Chamber of Commerce and various societies, such as the Cancer and Arthritis Societies. His son Philip is involved with the Kiwanis Club and plays many town sports including baseball, golf and curling.

The Jones expanded their services last year with a new building on Trafalgar Road. They can provide chapel services and funeral counselling. The full-time and part-time staff of seven includes Jim's wife Noreen, who takes an active part in the business. Philip Jones acts as business manager. Another son Stephen is also a licensed funeral director, however he is currently a police officer with Peel Regional Police.

The Jones Funeral Home is a member of Guaranteed Funeral Deposits, which guarantees protection of prepaid services.
