Catchin' the beat at Pioneer Days

There was more than one winner for the pioneer baby contest sponsored by Pennicworth. It was a tie between Andrea Johnson and her twin sister, Kathryn who arrived one minute later June 18. An award is given to the youngest pioneer annually at the downtown Georgetown Pioneer Days celebration. The twins were born at 10:07 a.m. and 10:08 a.m. The proud parents are Diane and Bill Johnson of RR3 Georgetown. Louise Porritt from Pennicworth presented the babies with two silver drinking glasses and a gift certificate at the store.

Pioneer Days had something for everyone, but young people seem to enjoy themselves the most. Friends relaxed with friends or hammed it up for the camera. (Herald photo)

Jack Layman's booth with rope-making and miniature steam engines was one of the most popular at Pioneer Days on the weekend. Here, he shows a young pioneer how to coil

a rope: strands of jute are attached to hooks. The hooks are then turned continuously until the strands are tightly wound. (Herald photo)

Sound Investment played Saturday afternoon for shoppers at Pioneer Days on Saturday. Lead singer of the band is Councillor John McDonald. The group specializes in rock from the 60's and 70's. (Herald photo)

An observer admires Agnes McClure's country plente arrangement which won first prize in that category at the Horticultural Society's contest. The Society set up a flower show and strawberry social in Knox Church during Pioneer Days on Saturday. Prizes were also awarded for roses of different varieties, flags and special techniques. One Horticultural Society member said the flowers suffered this spring because of a lack of rain.

Picasso the artist and Melody from Dr. Handoll's Travelling Goodtime Show had no trouble finding children to entertain on the streets of Georgetown during Pioneer Days Saturday. There was face-painting and sing songs for children.

Members of the Georgetown Klansmen Club served up yummy, yummy pancakes for early risers Saturday at Pioneer Days in downtown Georgetown. Crowds en-

Morley Mills was this year's recipient of the Pioneer Citizen award sponsored by the Halton Hills Herald. Mr. Mills has contributed much to Georgetown since he and his wife first moved here in 1963. He was an original board member of the Morley Mills Housing co-operative.
