Cary Grant, William Powell and Gary Cooper were the heroes of pre-World War II Hollywood. Today their classic blend of style and comfort pervades men's tallored clothing.

style, men will find suit looks, as well as sport-jacket, tie and trouser ensembles, that stress understated elegance, Beautiful Savile Row-inspired lighter fabrics. draping in jackets and trousers, luxe fabrics and a fastldious attention to detail all restate this underlying theme.

Subtle mixes of color in tweed and a far cry from antiquated clothing," striped suits, a spread-collar dress observes Joseph Abboud, one of the shirt in the finest cotton, a pure-silk newest and hottest designer names. pocket square and tie, alligator belt, "What I represent is a rejuvenation of woven leather braces (suspenders) these classic ideas, but updated to fit and enviable calf-skin shoes are the the new relaxed attitudes of the hallmark of the man who can now 1980s." dress with as much panache as comfort.

SIMPLICITY and elegance underscore men's wear for this fall and winter. At left, Lazo captures "elegant aggression" with a black and white broad-shouldered Glen plaid Jacket ($475), red Bengal-stripe cotton shirt ($120) and all-silk coin-dot tie ($50). Polo by Ralph Lauren, at right, achieves an artful mix of patterns with this cream and black wool berringbone single-breasted suit ($585), striped Sea Island cotton shirt ($135) and gray cashmere houndstooth with red overplaid cardigan vest ($265).

Relaxed elegance is the key to this season's interpretation of suits.

Jackets have slightly more fullness in the body and chest. Shoulders are a bit wider, but not as pronounced or hard-edged as in past years. Waist suppression is moderate, but there is definitely a closer fit at the hips.

Formal, fitted "dandy" looks are out. A comfortable silhonette is in.

Imagine Cary Grant posed with both hands in his trouser pockets, and you have the season's new smooth look.

*People want to be comfortable to fit their lifestyles," notes Jon Weiser, owner of New York's six trend-setting Charivari stores. "A wonderful sult is still a valid business look, and it will be comfortably elegant."

This new breed of fashion plate dresses with confidence, not flamboyance. He tends toward quality fabrics: wool or wools blended with cashmere, silk and camel's hair. As a matter of fact, cashmere sport jackets, vests and sweaters - even cashmere socks - are considered standards in the wardrobe of today's well-dressed man.
