Venturers from 2nd Georgetown, 1st Ashgrove and 1st Glen Williams. under the leadership of Assistant District Commissioner of Venturers Brent Collier, put together a good program. In spite of the inclement weather, the spirit was high, evident that the "spirit will live on."

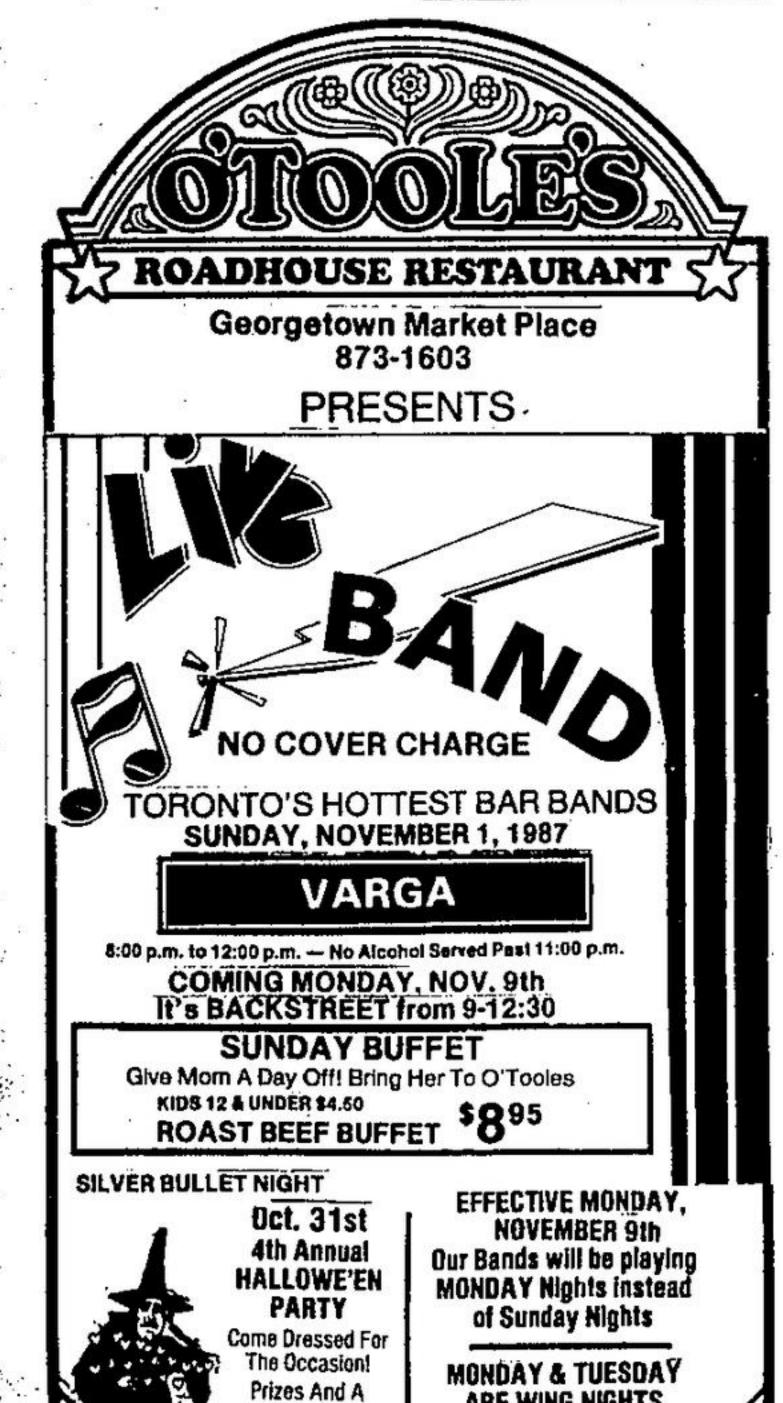

Venturers looked after the events as follows: map and compass, knots, equipment, kitchen, axe and knife and fire lighting. First ald was by Frank Tyrrell and the nature walk was taken care of by Vic Zubacs.

The scouts were interested in the fire demonstration. The scouts started gas fires and then were instructed the proper use of fire ex-tinguishers. Some scouts had never used fire extinguishers before.

The campfire was held in the lodge due to the heavy rains. Sixty scouts, 20 leaders and 20 Venturers all enjoyed the songs, skits and cheers.

Then it was mug-up and lights out.
Some of the Venturers helping with this camp will be going to the world jamboree in Australia in December. They are: John Valenting Page 1 tine, Russ Law, Dwight Spence, Scott Symmes, David Lobb, Chris Lee from North Halton and Paul Clarke of Burlington District. Brent Collier, Assistant District commissioner of Venturers and Venturer Advisor of 2nd Georgetown, st. George's Anglican Church, is also going as their leader.

Still hope for golf course homes

There is still a faint glimmer of hope for a proposed development of 17 new homes near the Georgetown Golf Course.

A.W. Anderson was on hand Monday, representing Georgetown Golf Estates Ltd., to defend the development which was defeated by the Town's General Committee Oct. 19.

The proposal calls for four of the holes be actually part of the eight back-yards. The land would be leased from the owners of the houses. The proposal has been in the works since 1984, Mr. Anderson said. "We feel we've complied with all the requests by the Town of Halton Hills," he said. A hydrogeological study has indicated there would be enough water for the new houses, Mr. Anderson

Studies have shown that there will be no agricultural impact on the land and soil tests prove the development can be supported, Mr. Anderson said.

A storm water management report indicated a minimal increase in storm water, Mr. Anderson said. A hydrogeologist report said water volume in existing wells would receive only a minimum drop,

A drilling program conducted in the summer of 1986 showed "very, very minimal effect on the volume found in the wells," he said. But Coun, Joe Hewitt, who launched an in depth attack on the proposal Oct. 19, said water volumes of homes on the Tenth Line did drop when the hydrogeologist conducted pumping anything that's not going to work." "People in the area right now have water problems," Coun. Peter Nor-

"If you build these homes there's no guarantee that these people will have water," he added. "The hydrogeologist has no concerns about it at all," replied Mr.

Anderson. Coun. Al Cook reminded Mr. Anderson that the pumping tests were conducted during one of the wetlest falls on record. "It is very unlikely you would find much difference," Mr. Anderson said of the hydrogeologists testing.

He agreed to do more testing if the Town demands it.

Four residents of RR4 Georgetown came before council Monday to either reaffirm their opposition to the development or go on record with their opposition.

All of the residents voiced concerns with the effects on their wells and septic systems.

Councillors had also objected to the idea of using parts of the back yards of eight lots as a portion of the
