Bride finds spouse isn't a turn-on

By Meg Whitcomb

DEAR MEG — I was an 18-year-old virgin when I married Tim. Tim hadn't had much experience, either. He'd only been with one girl before me.

The problem? Tim doesn't turn me on. The only way I can get excited is to think of some of the porn movies I've seen. And I often wonder what it would be like to be with another man.

There's a guy at work who's a good friend of mine. We've talked about my problem. Ralph thinks I should go to bed with another guy just once so that

I'll realize I'm not missing out on anything at home. I'm tempted. Should I go ahead and get it out of my system? — KANSAS

DEAR KANSAS — Right, and I'll bet Ralph would be the first to volunteer. Some guys will try anything.

You'd be crazy to fall for a line as transparent as the one he's handing you. Adultery doesn't solve problems, it creates them. Stay home and work on Tim. I'm not one for porn flicks, but there are several "how-to" sex videos on the market that could be helpful to the inexperienced lover. Give them a try.

DEAR MEG — I've been going with a man 22 years my senior. For 19 years he and his wife have been separated. I'm 30 and he's 52. He's very handsome and distinguished with gorgeous silver hair and a fabulous mind.

Until recently he was going with a real bombshell of a woman who wears wonderful jewelry and runs around in tiger print dresses. But she got tired of waiting for him to get a divorce and they broke up. That's when things began to get serious between us. He proposed, I accepted, and we went to bed together for the first time.

The problem? My beautiful man couldn't do a thing and still can't. He says this has never happened to him before. Meanwhile, the divorce is in progress. Until we got together, this man had a reputation for being a ladies' man, so what's going on? — CRAZY FOR SILVER FOX, OHIO

DEAR CRAZY — Old Silver Fox sounds like a sheep in wolf's clothing. Maybe his wife, Miss Tiger Print and the other ladies who gave him his label knew something you didn't. Or he could be one of those men's rights advocates who believe in life, liberty and the happiness of pursuit. Given the age gap, I'd give the guy the gate.

DEAR MEG — Two weeks and four days ago, somebody came into our yard and stole our sheep dog. We're heartbroken, and to make matters worse, Sally is almost blind. We can't bear to think of her in some strange place with strange people. We can only hope she's being treated with kindness.

My question is, why do people steal other people's dogs when they can go to the pound and get one of their own? Sally is old and didn't do anything except lie around the house. The ASPCA and the Humane Society have hundreds of puppies and younger dogs that would make terrific pets.

I'm 14, and I'm going to write an essay on stealing pets for my English class. Also, I want to put up the money we were saving for Sally's eye operation as a reward for finding her, but my folks don't want to because it's $1,000. Do you think a reward might make the thief bring her back? — SAD AND VERY MAD, LAKE FOREST, ILL.

say on stealing pets for my English class. Also, I want to put up the money we were saving for Sally's eye operation as a reward for finding her, but my folks don't want to because it's $1,000. Do you think a reward might make the thief bring her back? — SAD AND VERY MAD, LAKE FOREST, ILL.

DEAR SAD — A reward might motivate other dog lovers to look harder for Sally, but $1,000 is too much. People who steal dogs aren't usually looking for rewards.

On the chance that Sally got loose or was let go, here's what the experts say you should do: Notify the police, call all the animal shelters in your area, advertise in the Missing Pet classified section of your newspaper, and distribute flyers with Sally's description around town. Then hope for the best.
