GEORGETOWN 1850's

Many of Georgetown's residents came from Britain. For instance, the Barber family were originally from Ireland, the Forster's from England.

In the 1820's many English people came to Canada to escape the industrial existence and to farm here, but by 1860 the supply of fertile Canadian lands was low and in the 1840's and 1850's it was mainly Irish people immigrating to Canada to escape famine. Destitute, they did many pick and shovel jobs in construction or on the railways.

In the same period, a few black slaves escaped to Canada from the U.S.A. via "the Underground Railway". In the 1850's, Mrs. Shephard arrived in Georgetown with her son John Henry. Their home was a log cabin located near the "old grandstand" in what is now Georgetown Park.

Many thanks to Elaine Bertrand, Walter Lewis and John McDonalds "Halton Sketches".
