Magna man visits

APRIL

The Chairman of Magna International Inc., Frank Stronach spoke at the Georgetown Chamber of Commerce luncheon March 24. At Magna, employees get 10 per cent of the profits, he said. The Town of Halton Hills approves on average a $33 increase in its budget while the Halton Board of Education approves a $47 increase.

High bacteria counts were too high to use the Acton swimming pool and it had to be closed March 10. Problems with the filtration system are blamed for the closure.

A waste management study states that 15 million tonnes of waste could be handled by an Acton quarry if it was approved for a landfill site.

Five Association of Community Theatres for Central Ontario (ATCO) awards were won by Globe Productions and Georgetown Little Theatre, two local theatre groups. Globe had three wins and six nominations while GLT had two THEAS and three nominations.

A report from Halton Region predicts the population of Halton Hills could grow to 60,000.

A petition by protestors wants the Georgetown hospital to re-consider its decision to revoke the privileges of Georgetown doctor Jack Ford. The decision came into effect April 7.

Councillors from the Town of Halton Hills ask the hospital to consider open board meetings. A motion noted that communication has been non-existent in the past, although council appoints two members to the hospital board.

An airborne photographer takes a picture of 1,600 posing pupils on the back lawn of Georgetown District High School as part of the reunion celebrations.

Acton joins in a joint protest against VIA Rail to voice concerns about VIA cutbacks. Two evening trains are planned to be removed from the Toronto-London run.

POWER is the name of a new lobby group formed to protest the Acton quarry site proposal.

MAY

Refugees sheltered at Cedarvale Park in the 1920s have raised funds for an annual award to be given to a Georgetown District High School student at commencement exercises.

The future is uncertain for Open Door organizers, who need more financial help to keep the youth drop-in going. A walk-a-thon for Cystic Fibrosis sponsored by Zellers raised over $6,000.

A major development proposal was unveiled for Acton on 530 acres of land. The project calls for a championship 18 hole golf course, a 60-80 room country inn, conference centre and riding stables.

For the first time, a Georgetown doctor has received the Glenn Sawyers Service Award from the Ontario Medical Association. Dr. Alistair Macintosh received the award May 20 at the Terra Cotta Inn for his 25 years of service to the field of medicine.
