Students form SADD group

JUNE

A Georgetown teenager, Phillip Hughes, died in a two-car collision at the intersection of Sixth Line and Highway 7. The 17-year-old was a Grade 12 student at Georgetown District High School, who taught soccer and ranked high as a Canadian junior five-pin bowler.

Dr. Elliot Halparin was awarded a fellowship by the College of Family Physicians and Surgeons of Canada. About 300 people attended the 50th anniversary for Spencer and Kay Wilson.

Students at Georgetown District High School have begun a new group called SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving) to halt the number of alarming injuries caused by drunk driving. Student employment services is finding that students are being hired with little trouble for summer positions. A lady fighting the Region of Halton over damage to her car caused by potholes lost her case in court. The judge told the court the lady failed to prove the Region was negligent in caring for its roads.

A man died in a fire in Acton but his wife and his seven-month-old baby girl survived. William Kim Jensen was 31 years old. The fire was at 98 Crescent St.

Members of Georgetown Local 151 of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada went on strike for two days as part of the national union's rotating strike action against Canada Post.

Georgetown Marketplace Plaza stores are flooded when rain soaks through unfinished roof repairs.

Hollywood returns to Georgetown as the telefilm Drop-Out Mother starring Valerie Harper and Wayne Rogers was shot at the Georgetown GO Train station and later at the Union Presbyterian Church.

At the Georgetown hospital's annual general meeting, Judge Kenneth Langdon spoke at length about the revocation of Dr. Jack Ford. Board candidates representing the Dr. Ford support group were all defeated in the board elections, but the membership in total voted by a narrow margin to support open meetings. The vote was 107-98.

Plans for a horse park on the Scotsdale Farm property near Ballinalad were put to rest after the heritage horse park corporation decided the site was unsuitable.

JULY

The reunion at the Georgetown District High School featured former students who came from all parts of the world to be back with their former classmates. One former student, Jim Kelly, received a brick from the original old school which a teacher had saved. It was given to him 47 years later.

MPP Don Knight announced that he would step down from his position and not run for another term as a Member of Provincial Parliament. One reason he cited was not being able to make a meaningful contribution during his past term.

It's a three-way race for the Liberal nomination to fill the position left vacant when MPP Don Knight stepped down. Bruce Hood, Joe Hewitt and Walt Elliot are taking a run at the nomination in preparation for a provincial election.

The United Way of Halton Hills announces that it wishes to raise $140,000 for local charities and social service institutions. That's a 55 per cent increase over last year's goal.

At Halton Region, Burlington Mayor Roly Bird says he wants a review of Region's political representation to decrease the number of councillors.

A 30-year-old man visiting from Portugal drowned at Kelso Park in Milton at the roped off swimming area. A fourth Liberal candidate, Ben Colabrese, announces he will vie for the leadership of Halton North Liberals.

AUGUST

1,200 people sign Liberal membership cards making them eligible to vote at the Liberal convention to nominate a candidate in the next provincial election.
