KENNEDY, BARBER AND YOUNG HOMES

Kennedy built his family red brick home on Main Street. The second brick home to be built in Georgetown was built by Kennedy for his son. This home was thought to be the tiny home next to the old Police Station (the new Medical Centre on Mill Street now occupies this site). However, examination of the land records by Elaine Bertrand shows this house was owned by William Barber, and was therefore probably built for one of his factory workers.

James Barber's first home was on Main Street too (later this became the rectory for St. George's Church). James second home as a brick house overlooking the Mill on Water Street. William Barber's home overlooked the Barber paper mill established on the Credit River (near Varian).

James Young's house and store were also located on Main Street between Mill and Church Streets.

Thanks to "A Peek Into Georgetown's Past" written by students of Centennial School. Also Elaine Bertrand and Walter Lewis.
