Each year, the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences hands out its Grammy Awards - the most sought-after awards in the music industry.

But, what's a "year"? Paul Simon's Graceland won the Grammy for top album "last year."

Yet, among the finalists for single of the year "this year" is Simon's Graceland.

The academy must use a strange calendar.

Downchild is back.

The Canadian blues and roots-based rock 'n' rock band is releasing its first album in more than five years.

Appropriately, the new album is called "It's Been So Long".

Members of the Toronto Blue Jays' Triple 'A' farm team in Syracuse, N.Y., will have to be careful out on the diamond this year.

The new color commentator for radio broadcasts of Syracuse games is Ken Levine - a co-writer of TV shows such as Cheers and MASH and movies such as Jewel of the Nile.

If the CBC ever decides to produce a baseball version of its popular He Shoots, He Scores hockey drama,

Levine would be an obvious choice as scriptwriter.

In the magic world of TV, the Blue Jays might actually make it to a World Series.

The 8th annual Variety Club of Ontario Star Time Telethon airs Jan. 30 and 31 on Global TV.

Monte Hall is the host, backed by a horde of co-hosts, including Burton Cummings.

Among the many guests are Maureen Forrester, Carroll Baker and Ronnie "The Hawk" Hawkins.

Another TV extravaganza on the horizon is America's Tribute to Bob Hope.

As well as saluting the veteran entertainer, the special celebrates the opening of the McCallum Theatre of Performing Arts at the Bob Hope Cultural Centre in Pal Desert, Calif.

It will be telecast in Canada by CTV on Feb. 6 at 10 p.m.

The largest TV extravaganza in Canada this year, though, will centre on the Calgary Winter Olympics.

CBC-TV will kick off its extensive coverage Feb. 7 with a 90-minute visual and musical tribute to the Olympics: A Gala Evening at Calgary '88.

Max Headroom, the computer-generated talking head, will be the host. The guests, fortunately, have more talent. Among those in the spotlight will be: Anne Murray, Loverboy, Oscar Peterson and skating champion Toller Cranston, who will skate to a piano concerto composed and performed by David Foster.
