CHURCHES IN THE 1850's

In 1841, a frame church was opened by the Wesleyan Methodists. Charles Kennedy was amongst its members. This church was located on Wesleyan Street, on the site of the Odd Fellows Hall. A Congregationalists church was erected in 1945 on Church Street and this was supported by the Barber family. This church stood where the Cultural Centre is now.
In 1848, there was a Methodist Episcopal Chapel in Georgetown located on Highway 7 near Main Street (where the United Church now stands).
Georgetown had a Baptist Church membership as early as 1847 when Michael Dayfoot was the first deacon; however, a church building was not erected until 1893.
The Knox Presbyterian Church was organized in 1845, but the church was not built until 1867.
In Norval, the Scottish settlers established a Disciple Congregation. In 1820, and in 1853 a Wesleyan Methodist church was built where the present day United Church now stands.

"ST. GEORGE'S ANGLICAN CHURCH - a history", by Rev. Richard Ruggle was used as a reference.
