Razors don't cause beards

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT - My fiance three times a day. Would he be shav- your orthopedic surgeon. ing less now if he'd started later?

DEAR READER - Some dermatologists believe that shaving "peachthe hair to grow in more coarsely and thus compound the problem. I don't subscribe to this view. Your fiance probably just has a heavy beard; this is more likely the result of his genes than of his razor. DEAR DR. GOTT - I'm quite a seafood lover. After I eat fish, my urine smells like a fish market. My doctor said he'd never heard of such a thing. Have you?

DEAR READER - Certain foods contain compounds that produce an odor when excreted. Asparagus is common in this regard and will give a characteristic smell to the urine. Some people tend to excrete other compounds in food. Although the smell of fish is ordinarily not a problem in the urine of seafood lovers, such a phenomenon is not surprising. This is not abnormal, just unusual.

DEAR DR. GOTT - Does macular degeneration of the eye always end up In a stroke?

DEAR READER - No. Macular degeneration simply means that a portion of the eye's retina is malfunctioning, causing deterioration of accurate sight. Macular degeneration can be caused by blood clots and can be

DEAR DR. GOTT - I am 18 and a senior in high school. I have not yet matured physically and sexually, after treatment. What should I do?

DEAR READER - Although most adolescents have fully matured physically by age 18, some teenagers are late bloomers. I think that you should be examined by a doctor to make sure that there is no glandular problem causing your slow growth.

DEAR DR. GOTT - An eye clinic alternative. won't treat me because I have Kearns-Sayre syndrome. What is this disease and what kind of doctor should I see?

DEAR READER - Kearns-Sayre syndrome is a very unusual form of inherited muscular dystrophy, a condition in which certain muscles become increasingly weak. This disease is sporadic in appearance and has no known cause. It produces progressive eye-muscle weakness, retinal degeneration, short stature, hearing loss, heart block and various neurological abnormalities. Almost all cases begin before age 15. There is no known treatment.

I suggest that you be examined by specialists in an eye clinic of a teaching hospital; perhaps there is an experimental treatment that is not available to the average ophthalmologist.

DEAR DR. GOTT - Several of my friends have had hip replacements. Some had steel sockets, some plastic. Which is better?

DEAR READER - The type of hip prosthesis and the precise technique of implanting it are highly individualized decisions that are made by the doctor, depending on the patient's needs, and the skill, experience and preference of the surgeon. I do not started shaving at the peach-fuzz know which artificial hip is "better"; stage. Now he has to shave two or that is a choice best left to you and

DEAR DR. GOTT - A friend was fuzz" hair - for men on their faces told he has Reiter's syndrome. He's and women on their legs - will cause really shocked and doesn't want to talk about it. Could you explain it to

DEAR READER - Reiter's syndrome is a peculiar and poorly understood disease characterized by arthriinflammation), (joint conjunctivitis (eye inflammation) and urethritis (inflammation of the urethral tube leading from the bladder). The condition can appear after an attack of dysentery or it can be sexually transmitted. The ailment can be seen in women, but it appears to be more common in men. The syndrome is suspected when a patient develops painful joints, red and scratchy eyes and urethral discharge; it is confirmed by a blood test for human leukocyte antigen (HLA-B27) and a negative culture of the urethral discharge. Treatment consists of antibiotics and anti-inflammatory drugs. Although some patients recover, many tend to have repeated episodes of inflammation. In a few patients, relapse is associated with a variety of illnesses, including ulcerations in the mouth, rheumatism, spinal arthritis, rash, tendon irritation and asthma. Reiter's syndrome was formerly thought to be a self-limited process; produced by a stroke, but it does not, however, recent studies have shown that 80 percent of patients have evidence of disease as long as five years

DEAR DR. GOTT - I have been diagnosed as having a non-cancerous cyst in my scrotum. The internist and urologist both say that surgical removal of the cyst will leave scar tissue which may cause as much pain as the cyst itself. Do you agree? I'm 31 and feel that there must be some

DEAR READER - Scrotal cysts are common and usually require no treatment. When small, they are painless and resemble the benign schaceous cysts that can occur anywhere on the body. If your cysts are painful, they must be either large or infected.

I do not know whether scar tissue from surgery would be as painful as the cysts themselves. Because your situation is somewhat unusual, you evidently have a difficult decision to make. Perhaps a third opinion would help you to make up your mind.
