STORES IN THE 1850's

John Sumpter opened the first store in Georgetown, located on Main Street, down from the corner of Cross and Main.

He sold silks from Asia and feathers from Africa. John eventually became Georgetown's first postmaster from 1851 to 1859, then Conrad Van Dusen took over.

In 1842, James Young, Georgetown's first Reeve set up a general store and a hardware store on Main Street between Church and Mills Streets. Samuel Phillips (James Young's brother-in-law) had an office in the rear of the hardware store.
