DOMINION
SEED HOUSE

In 1928, William Bradley added a new facet to his mail order business, when he took on the packaging of seeds and their distribution through a mail order service. To paraphrase a saying, 'from a small seed, great things can grow', and today Dominion Seed House has risen to take its place among the premier seed houses in Canada. Like the robin, the arrival of the seed catalogue each year is a main harbinger of Spring. For years, people have been relying on Dominion for their gardening needs, as they enjoyed the luxury of ordering through the seed house's impressive color catalogue. Dominion Seed House is celebrating its Diamond Anniversary, marking the 60th year it has been operating as a mail order seed business. Through these many years Dominion has made friends at every point in the country, through the mail, and it stands as a valued member of the Georgetown business community.
