

Outlook on Halton Hills

Business Ventures

Wendy and Phil Miller pose with from Britain and custom order bak-cakes made at their Guelph Street ed goods are available. Mr. Miller bakery in Georgetown. The couple has been in the baking business for took over ownership of Bakery 18 years, operating a bakery with his Dellite in May, and changed the wife Wendy, back in the United name to Miller's Bakery, but kept Kingdom. They have been in Canada the same staff. Now, the bakery pro- six years and are hoping to further duces more than just breads. Cakes, their confectionary business. cookies, specialty desserts recipes (Herald photo).

Crafty Gifts and Things on Main Street in Georgetown cut the ribbon for their expanded store area on Fri- day. The crafts and gifts shop open- ed a new space in the Old Bank Building complete with a sewing machine for customized orders. Daughter Karen will be joining her mother Ruth Sampson in the store partnership. Left to right are Karen Sampson, Margaret Vint, BIA pro- motion co-ordinator, and owner Ruth Sampson. (Herald photo)

Pass the buns

The second annual Queen Street barbecue was attended by about 50 people in the backyard of Ed and Rosetta Weston June 24. The residents had a potluck barbecue beginning in the early evening and most enjoyed the get-together until the rains came later that night. Here, Bruce Caverly, David Redman and Ed Weston huddle over the barbecue as they prepare the hot dogs. (Herald photo)

Recognizing 30 years of service

Mayor Russ Miller visited the ladies at Elliott Custom Brokers in the Georgetown Terminal Warehouse on Armstrong Avenue, Thursday. Mayor Miller gave the company a plaque in recognition of their success in the last 30 years since opening. Left to right are Brenda Sissett, Norma Elliott, Mayor Miller and Lois Fraser. The mother and daughters team operate Elliott Custom Brokers. (Herald photo)

Highland Games draw winners

Happy winners of the Highland Games draw receive their prizes. Rev. Peter Barrow and his wife will travel to Scotland on Wardair with their contest prize. Don Bantling wins a dinner for two at Georgetown's Poppy's restaurant. Left to right are Roos Travel representative Rick Kritschghan, winner Don Bantling, Georgetown Highland Games president Keith Spicer, Wardair Area Sales Manager Cheryl Gregory-Gendron, Carol Barrow and Rev. Barrow of Knox Church.

Promoting "Hire a Student" week

A furry guest dropped into the Employment Centre at Guelph Street and Mountainview Road last Wednesday to help promote Hire a Student Week. Posing with the gorilla left to right are students Neil Munro, Kelly Bridge, Employment office staff Angela Baskard and Karen Coates and Supervisor of the Canadian Employment Office, Debby McIntyre. The gorilla is really Don Blanchard, manager at the Lindsay Employment Of- fice.