She's another New Yorker. The original script describes her character as "an Upper East Side snob."

Q. Could you give me some information on Avery Brooks, who plays Hawk on "Spenser: For Hire." -A.L.L., Virginia, Minn.

A. During the "Spenser" run, Brooks was on leave from Rutgers University, where he taught acting for 13 years. Brooks, who is married and the father of two children, has worked for the Shakespeare Festival in New York, and for the Negro En-

O. I remember a movie from the late '60s in which Peter Sellers is at a party. It had a funny bathroom scene where Sellers is sitting on the toilet and all the toilet paper unrolls. What is the name of that movie? - C.H.,

A. I don't remember that scene

(mercifully), but it could be from

"The Party," a Sellers movie full of hope I'm right. Lobster tail depends

A. The lobster tail is yours, the bill goes to your wife. "The Shakiest Gun in the West" was definitely a remake

Q. Can you please give me some information on one of my favorites -

Larry Manetti of "Magnum, P.I." I know nothing about him. - R.W.S.,

A. Larry Manetti, who is 5-foot-9, was born in Pendleton, Ore. He grew up in Chicago and studied acting at Northwestern University. He appeared in the film "Two Minute

Warning," in 1976; then signed to play

Lt. Boyle in the TV series "Black Sheep Squadron* (1976-78). He also had recurring parts on the TV series

"Battlestar Galactica" and "The Duke" before hitting it blg in "Magnum, P.I.," which lasted for eight seasons. The actor and his wife, Nancy.

Dear Dick: Can you give us any information on a movie called 'Fire

Sale"? It starred Carl Reiner, Alap
