Correction

There was an error in the outline of a photo featuring winners of a Halton Hills Camera Club competition, on page 2 of the Oct. 8 edition of Outlook.

In the outline, the person on the left was named as Elaine Wasserman, when in fact, this was Nancy Murphy.

Outlook apologizes for the error.

Currie runs, Norton bows out

Local reporter Anne Currie has jumped into the race for Ward 3 councillor and veteran Councillor Peter Norton has pulled out of the running for a third term in Ward 2.

Ms. Currie, a reporter for the Georgetown Independent, officially announced her intention to run following a council meeting Oct. 11.

Ms. Currie said she no longer plans to cover council now that she has entered the race.

At the same council meeting Ward 2 Coun. Peter Norton surprised his colleagues with his announcement.

Mr. Norton works at Givner Carpets in Brampton, said new "added responsibilities" at work and the hours of his store's operation will make it difficult for him to attend the many council and committee meetings.

Coun. Norton publicly thanked the people who have supported him over the past two terms on council.

The Glen Williams resident asked his colleagues to "keep Confederation Street in mind" when they discuss upgrading roads in Halton Hills.

Borrowing a phrase from famed comedian Bob Hope, Mr. Norton wrapped up his years on council by saying: "Thanks for the memories."
