ACTON'S OLDEST HOME

In one of our recent articles it was mentioned the Zenas Adams' home on Church and Main Streets, as the oldest in town. It was not. Rufus Adams' wife was a Vermont educated gentlewoman. When they came here in 1825 from Quebec City they almost immediately set about erecting a school house where the Knox Presbyterian Church now stands, at the corner of Main Street and Knox Avenue. Methodist circuit preacher John Carrol noted in his diary in 1826 that he visited Adams' School House in Acton. This old building was later moved when its life as a school and chapel was ended, further up Main Street. It still stands on the west side of Main Street, opposite River Street.

Many thanks to Mark Rowe, President of Esqueving Historical Society. Next meeting, Knox Church (Next to Library), Georgetown at 7:30 p.m. November 9th, 1988. Topic: "Talk by Ontario Heritage Foundation".
