

Outlook on Halton Hills

The Georgetown Lioness Club float tipped the people off as they watched the parade and awaited the arrival of Santa Claus, and his reindeer.

The children obviously enjoyed the arrival of Santa last Saturday. Although some thought the mar-

Well, the merry month of December is upon us, and it brings a wonderful fresh sack of excitement in marketing homes. So many new approaches to advertising, promotion and decorating can be used now to get your home on the "most wanted list." For those of you who are just getting your home on the market, you could put up your seasonal decorations right away to give your home a nice holiday glow. For those of you who have homes that are already on the market, move along and get your house in the spirit of things quickly. The "country" look is very popular at present, and it can be achieved quite easily with a little imagination and not a lot of dollars. Tie bows on your tree, garlands of pine on your mantels with big bows for accents, welcome wreaths on your doors, and a crackling fire in the hearth if you have one. It all adds up to a nice homey atmosphere, and that is just exactly what you want to convey to prospective purchasers.

I noticed that in a few of our local grocery stores, they are selling little packets of scent that you can mix with water and put on your stove or over a small candle type burner, to give a lovely fragrance throughout the air in your home. It's a great idea, and I picked up a few extras myself a couple of weeks ago, for taking to open houses during the holiday season. It really is fun to work with the seasons, and surely Christmas is one of the best and the longest time-frame we have to be creative with.

You might have noted from the newspaper and the lack of signs on the lawns recently, that listings are on the short side at present. Not an unusual happening for this time of year - but, if you can stand having your home on the market during this hectic time, you will probably find that you will have lots of showings, and the showings will be from very serious buyers! The people who are out looking at homes at the present are not just browsing - (can you imagine "just browsing" during this busy period!) - they really want a home and probably quickly too. Prices are good too for the sellers, for the lack of product keeps prices on the high side - so do think very seriously about putting that For Sale sign up if you can handle it... we really do not know what will happen in the spring.

Keep smiling, wear running shoes, and have faith in your agent this month - we have much to be happy about!

The Gingerbread Family was on hand for the Santa Claus Parade last Saturday. The float was entered by the Georgetown and District Branch of the Red Cross.

Firefighters respond

Fire officials were called to an Armstrong Avenue warehouse Thursday to clean up 40 gallons of an alcohol-based material. Officials say the "very flammable" liquid spill was reported at 9 a.m.

Firefighters were called to a Guelph Street factory early Friday morning to clean up 450 litres of diesel fuel. A driver fuelling his truck left the vehicle unattended when the spillage occurred. There was no ignition of the fuel, but it did empty into a storm sewer and nearby pond, say officials.
