Fuelers tie Oakville

Minor Atom Tri-County play last week had Georgetown's Star Fuelers playing Flamborough, Oakville, and Chinguacousy. The Fuelers picked up a tie in one of the three games and showed some of their potential to score in one of the other games.

The Fuelers watched Flamborough get a 5-1 lead and came back with a stream of goals in the third but still lost it. Pete Mashinter got the first two goals with Chris Goodhew assisting on both and Stephen Markham helping out on the second one. As the Fuelers came alive, Darin Finlayson finished one that Jamie Briggs started.

About this point in the game doctors Craig and Andrews made some lineup changes and put a productive trio together. Gary McNiven scored with assists by Andy Keralake and Curt Carr. Then Curt scored with Andy and Gary assisting. Four goals in the third but Flamborough won it 7-5.

The team was ready to beat Oakville and had the lead until Oakville scored with seven seconds left to gain a tie at two. The Rangers had scored first but Chris Goodhew followed with a scoring shot from a sharp angle after taking a pass from Pete. Linemate Stephen Markham was part of a later play as Ryan Taylor took a shot from the point and Goodhew popped his second goal.

Lots of tension as Oakville put the pressure on but both goaltenders, Geoff Beauparant and Andrew Craig, made several key saves with special note of Andrew facing the extra attackers at the end of the game.

Games with Ching are usually rough but the blue team came to town to play hockey and rolled up a five goal lead before the Fuelers got one. Andy Keralake stuffed one during a goalmouth scramble with Chris and Pete getting the assists for getting the puck in close. All this after defenceman Ryan Taylor had carried it up from the other end of the rink.

Final score: 5-1 for the visitors.

Bingham stars as Broncos win MAC title

Joanne Bingham of Georgetown joins her Western Michigan University's volleyball teammates in preparing for the NCAA post-season tournament as the Broncos captured the Mid-American Conference title on Nov. 25-26 in Kalamazoo.

Bingham, a junior outside hitter, registered 26 kills, 10 digs and three total blocks in Western's 13-15, 10-15, 15-6, 15-10, 15-10 victory over Miami (Ohio) on Friday.

In the championship match, Western defeated Eastern Michigan 15-7, 15-11, 15-9 as Bingham recorded 11 kills, hit 320 and added 11 digs.

A passing fancy

Gerry Turpie of the Acton Redmen senior boys basketball team passes off under the watchful eyes of three Georgetown Rebels during local high school hoops action recently at AHS. Rebels won the contest 53-42 and both teams will now enjoy Christmas break before resuming East Halton league play in January. Shown guarding Turpie are Mike Dyer, Brent Falcone and Mark Murnaghan. (Outlook photo)

What a mechanical world we live in! The power cut we had this week sure brought the whole area to a stand still, in short order. All of a sudden, I think most of us realized, just how much of our lives are geared around electricity. Candles are OK for a little time, but they are not too great for doing toast. Woodstoves do the trick for the heating situation, if you have one, but if you have an insert, the fan won't work - so huddling around the fire becomes a must.

The new phone systems won't work, so most of our offices were pretty useless for half a day - to say nothing of heat, computers and pagers that make our day tick around. I guess it all brought everything into perspective again - for indeed we sometimes need to get shaken up a bit to realize just the kind of world we live in. Without the tools of our trade, we just can't operate. I got to thinking about the companies I have heard about in the States that now do a lot of their pre-selling by video tape. My guess is, that this has become a way of life for them and it would be just another problem area if the hydro went off for a lengthy period of time. It is very difficult to do without a system once you become accustomed to it. Can you imagine the chaos we would have if that power cut was for days not just hours? It was bad enough for the time we had it - stretching our imagination to using other means of communication.

Now that things are back to normal, we will talk about this episode for days, but soon it will fade into the woodwork while more important things take over our thoughts and lives. However, perhaps we should try to keep it close to the surface of our memories for the next time we hook up to another new device to make our days go further, and to keep us in touch with our world 24 hours a day. Like most things in life, it can all be stamped out by the mere flick of a switch, and what is left are the basic things in life - like home and families. It is so easy to forget and maybe at this time of year - more than most - it is time to slow down and flick the switch to "off" a few more times, to make it the meaningful time of year it should be.

I hope you switch to "off" at least a few times this week in order to love and be loved.
