

THE WEEK

School mourns again after student's death

GDHS News

Jamie Harrison

Hello, good readership, and how are you?

On Friday, Feb. 10, 1989, Georgetown District High experienced tragedy for the third time this year. Steve 'Wingnut' Wingfield, a popular GDHS student, died last weekend. The news of Steve's death was a great shock to both staff and students at GDHS, who regarded Steve as a close friend, classmate, and confidante. The funeral for Steven William Wingfield was held Thursday at 2:30 p.m. at Hillcrest United Church. The passing of Steve will be felt for years to come by those who were lucky enough to know him.

In other news at GDHS, this past Wednesday, GDHS Co-op students went on a tour of Varian Canada, a popular Co-op placement, to help familiarize themselves with a work environment. Due to large numbers, the tour had to be directed in two shifts.

Friday night GDHS students were dancing the night away in a semi-formal fashion, celebrating Valentine's Day (even if it was a little late). The dancing and partying went from 7 till 11.

Just who are the Harlem Diplomats? A band of thugs turned basketball players? Politicians turned pro? Stay tuned to find out.

The OAC History students went on a field trip this past Friday to the University of Guelph to research their chosen Independent Study projects in the University's massive library. Not only were the students at an advantage just considering the use of the library, but most were familiar with how it runs, after a trip there in October.

As the semester progresses, many students may be surprised - shocked even - to learn that they will soon have tests! Who was the masochistic soul who ever thought that by telling people days ahead of a test, that they would actually study? Short and simple: NOBODY STUDIES 'TIL THE NIGHT BEFORE!!! Not that this will help, but it's worth a shot.

Aye, mateys, that be all for now. Tune in next week for more. As they say, "Be there or be Square."
