

Brides and grooms were tastefully outfitted in the latest spring fashions as the Welcome Wagon hosted its annual Bridal Fashion and Tuxedo Show at John Elliott Theatre on Feb. 26. A full house was treated to bridal fashions by Charlie's of Oakville and Tuxedos from Tuxedo Royale. Several local businesses made draw prizes available during the afternoon. (Herald photo)

Georgetown clergy help young couples prepare for marriage

The Georgetown Ministerial is introducing a Marriage Preparation Course for the Georgetown community.

This is the first time the churches of Georgetown have cooperated in this way, and it is seen by clergy here as an exciting way for churches to share their resources in support of this vital part of life.

Couples seeking to be married in most Georgetown and area churches will be asked to participate in either of two ways. Plan A requires one evening a week for four weeks, from 7:30 - 10 p.m. This course begins April 5 at St. George's Anglican Church. Plan B requires a commitment to a weekend (Friday night and all day Saturday). This course will be April 14 and 15 at St. Andrew's United Church.

Ms. Glad Bryce, educator and Marriage and Family Therapist, will be the leader of both course options. She has taught at York University, and serves as a consultant in marriage-related issues for the Anglican Church of Canada. Besides this professional expertise, she brings to the course her sensitivity from her own faith and family experience.

The courses will emphasize communication skills, financial planning, and goal-setting techniques, as well as raise awareness of issues related to intimacy and family life. Each couple will continue to see their personal minister in charge of the wedding, but much of the background counselling preparing the couple for life together will be accomplished through these courses.

The cost of the course will be $75 per couple. Registrations may be made through Mrs. Pam Ford, 27 Stockman Crescent, Georgetown, L7G 1J5. Inquiries can also be made through any local minister.

The churches of Georgetown perceive this program as one more sign of their unanimous support for marriage and family life as an important priority for our society.

Genealogist set to speak
