Branch 120 PRO

The Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 120 of Georgetown, mourns the passing of Comrade Bernie Postlethwaite, who served in the Royal Canadian Air Force for 18 years before joining Branch 120 in 1974. Our sympathy is extended to his family and friends at this time.

The 37th car draw is behind us. At the end of a long evening the big winner was Bob McMenemy.

On Saturday afternoon at Andrew Murray Motors, Bob took possession of a brand new 1989 Oldsmobile Cutlass Ciera. Congratulations. To the rest of us, better luck next time. The full list of winners follows later in this article.

On Saturday, March 11, 1989, in front of the new Halton Hills Civic Centre Mayor Russ Miller accepted on behalf of the town, matching portraits of Her Majesty the Queen, and His Royal Highness Prince Phillip. These portraits represent a joint donation on behalf of Branch 120 and Branch 197, the Royal Canadian Legion, to the citizens of Halton Hills.

In the Saturday afternoon meat draw, this week's winners were Leona Middleton, Herman Nicholson, Archie Brown (you only get your name in once, Archie), Terry Bludd, Ed Roadnight, Mary Doane, Eric Howell, H. Lough and Jim Hayes. The roast was won by Herman Nicholson.

Proposal for new car wash meets with stiff opposition

A proposal to build a second automatic car wash in Georgetown is running into opposition from nearby business owners.

Georgetown Chrysler wants to build a gas station and automatic car wash on the northeast corner of Armstrong Avenue and Guelph Street. The land needs to be rezoned to allow the car wash.

But owners of the Coin-op car wash on Guelph Street and members of the Georgetown Co-op have concerns about the proposal. Allio Concaleas and Frank Leal, co-owners of the Coin-op car wash want to know how much water the car wash will use but they were told those details haven't yet been worked out.

Mr. Concaleas thinks the eastern end of Georgetown has enough car washes already. He asked councillors to "judge whether we need another car wash in the area."

Sheldon Glickman, an agent representing the Co-op store, said the Co-op was denied two entrances off Guelph Street when the company installed gas pumps in 1983, and he was told to grade the property so the gas pumps were placed lower than the road creating visibility problems. He wants to know if the same standards will apply to the new car wash and gas station.

Town planning director Ian Keith said he will research the Co-op application and prepare a report.

Robert Mary, a member and director of the Co-op, doesn't want the extra business to cut into the Co-op's volume at the pumps.

The gas pumps are helping the Co-op business remain at its present location, Mr. Mary said. "I'd like proof that another one is needed or that another one wouldn't hurt the Co-op businesses."

But a gas bar could be built on the property now, without rezoning, countered Clare Riepma, the agent for Georgetown Chrysler.

He argued that a second automatic car wash is needed in Georgetown (the only other one is located at the Petro-Canada Gas Station on Guelph Street and Sinclair Avenue).

The issue of entrances onto Guelph Street can be settled by the town's site plan committee, he said.

Town staff will prepare a report with recommendations on the application in two weeks.

ASK KATHY

My job takes me away from home regularly. How do I manage to diet while eating at restaurants?

Reply:

Restaurant food is notoriously high in fat. It can be extremely difficult to eat properly when dining out. Here are a few suggestions. Start by going through the salad bar (but watch out for those high-calorie dressings) and then order leaner cuts of meat that can be broiled. Avoid foods that are deep-fried or have heavy sauces.

At Diet Center, we teach you how to dine defensively. Dining out is a natural and enjoyable part of life; and when you learn how to order and how to select food from the menu,

Hydro commission gets increase

Halton Hills hydro commissioners will receive a pay hike of almost 27 per cent this year.

In January the Halton Hills Hydro Commission voted to increase the salaries of commissioners from $187.50 a month to $237.50. The chairman of the commission will receive a pay increase of $58.33 to $275 a month.

Halton Hills councillors endorsed the pay hike last week.

The chairman this year is Doug Mason. The four hydro commissioners alternate the chairman's position between them on an annual basis.

In a letter to town councillors, Halton Hills Hydro Commission manager Gerry Trudell said the commission "has never received or requested a stipend increase since its formation in 1980."

In the recommendation approved by council last week, there is also a provision to review hydro commissioners' salaries annually to reflect the increase in cost of living.
