Normore paces Young's attack

Young's Pharmacy moved up two points ahead of the rest of the pack with a big 6-1 win over A and S Engravers as GMHA Novice house league playoffs continued on Mar. 11.

Brian Normore paced the winning attack with a hat trick while single goals came from Shawn Morden, Darren Manfield and Ryan Booth. Normore, Manfield and Booth added one assist each to their scoring totals. Thomas Arnold had the lone A and S goal.

The win left Young's alone in first place in the playoff standings with seven points, two ahead of the Kinsmen and M and M Sports who are tied at five.

Kinsmen and M and M's both kept pace although the Pro Sports squad had to settle for a 1-1 tie with a pesky Hockey Moms club. Kinsmen clipped the Lions Club 5-3.

Sam Southworth scored for M and M's with Mark Quaglia picking up the assist while Brent McClung had the Hockey Moms goal with assists going to Jason Hayes and Ryan Inglis.

Mathew Alexa had the hat trick for the Kinsmen in their win while Kris Noonan and Stephan Gibbons notched singles. David Dapodopolus had a pair for the Lions with Nathan Porter potting another. Bryan Foster drew an assist.

Glen Eden expanding

Commencing the spring of 1989, Glen Eden Ski Area will be undertaking a $1.5 million expansion to the snowmaking facilities and slopes.

The project, which was developed by Delta Engineering, will involve a new compressor building, two new 3000 CFM Air Compressors, water pumps to pump 1200 gallons per minute, a pipeline extension, an electrical sub station, and a new ski run under the Twister Chairlift (with lighting).

This project will almost double our present snow making capacity allowing earlier start up for skiing in December and guarantee 100 per cent coverage for the Christmas break. Also the expansion will increase the skiable terrain by one slope and prepare the area for the next phase of expansion.

This expansion is part of Glen Eden's development plans that commenced in 1987 with the installation of the new triple chairlift and will carry on over the next five years with new facilities being developed to handle Glen Eden's constantly growing skier market.

For public information regarding Glen Eden programs and activities during March, please call 878-5011 or 878-4478 and 878-8455 for up-to-date snow conditions.

Tough times for Georgetown Bantam squads...

Times have been tough, lately, for Georgetown's Bantam hockey teams. The M and M Pro Sports "AA" reps have been eliminated in three straight games from second round OMHA playdowns by Richmond Hill (left) after dropping game three in Richmond Hill on Tuesday night by a 4-2 count. Meanwhile, both the Bantam B's and Minor

Bantams were still looking for their first win in the GMHA International Bantam tournament this week after dropping their opening two games. In the photo on the right, Bantam B's captain Brad Tutt gets a rough reception in the Hanover crease from Dave Doersam. B's lost the contest, 3-2. (Herald photos)

Triathlon becoming major sport

TORONTO-It appears triathlon is on its way to becoming a major sport in Canada.

Royal LePage, Canada's leading realtor, has announced the company will sponsor a six-race national triathlon series, the first series of its kind in Canada. The sponsorship represents a $250,000 commitment from Royal LePage and the prize package will total over $100,000.

Among the events in the national series are the Canadian Long Course (Half Ironman) Championship in Orillia, on Aug. 20 and the Canadian Short Course (Olympic distance) championship in Calgary on July 23. Both events have been sanctioned by the Triathlon Association of Canada (TriCan), the governing body of the sport in Canada.

On hand for the recent announcement were Nick Taylor, 1988 Canadian Triathlon champion, and Scott Tinley, one of the top triathletes in the world. Tinley is a two-time winner of the famous Ironman triathlon in Hawaii.

According to Bob Benson, Public Relations Manager for Royal LePage: "Triathlon is an amazing success story in sports. In a very short period of time it has attracted a huge following. Triathlon events in North America will attract well over 1 million entries in 1989.

"Moreover, it's a grass roots sport, attracting not only professional athletes but thousands of amateurs who participate purely for the challenge."

In addition to the national circuit, named the Canadian Triathlon Series, Royal LePage will fund a number of provincial events, including an seven-race Ontario series, the Quebec Championships (St. Sauveur), the Ontario Championships in Grimsby, and the Royal LePage Edmonton Triathlon.

With the exception of the long course race in Orillia which covers the half-Ironman distance, the triathlons in the Royal LePage series are Olympic distance events - 1.5 km swim, 40 km bike and 10 km run. A top ranked triathlete can complete this course in under two hours.

By comparison, a full Ironman distance, such as the event in Hawaii, covers a course that includes a 2.4 miles swim, a 112 mile bike and a 26.2 mile run. A top international athlete can cover the Ironman distance in under nine hours.

A survey of people who take part in triathlons revealed some unique characteristics. The average age of triathletes, for example, is 34 years, and the average family income is over $30,000 per year. Women account for 25 per cent of triathletes. The events in the Royal LePage series includes age categories for athletes over 60 years old.

Royal LePage is Canada's leading full service realtor, with close to 10,000 employees in over 350 residential and commercial offices in Canada and the United States, with affiliates overseas.
