Rebels downed by Loyola

Because of a "mental breakdown" in the bottom of the fourth inning the Georgetown District High School boys baseball Rebels lost to Loyola High School in Oakville, with Loyola scoring four runs to take a close-fought 5-2 game.

Georgetown's coach Randy Marinangeli attributed the team's breakdown to a loss of concentration on the part of Rebel pitcher Gordon Burke.

Coach Marinangeli said Burke pitched a very good game except for the half-inning. In one inning Burke closed with strikeouts rather than groundouts, the coach said.

The coach also attributed the loss to Loyola's ability to capitalize on their chances. "They had a wonderful steal home to score their first run," he said.

With one more game to play coach Marinangeli says the Rebels can still make the playoffs. The team is battling E.C. Drury of Milton for the fourth and final playoff spot.
