Fastball pennant up for grabs in '89

There was a time once when potential teams had to be refused entry into the local competitive Georgetown industrial fastball circuit. Ten teams used to be the norm in the league. Now the league is down to just four clubs vying for top honors for the 1989 season.

Players of yester-year will recall a time when up to bat they would greet pitchers whom they had never seen or had forgotten their throwing style. "who was that guy that just struck me out?" they would say as they headed back to the players' bench.

Does anyone recall Casselman Fuels and the stranglehold they had on the league for years?

Does anyone remember a team called the Tokers? I never really could figure out what a Toker really was, but boy they played as if they were on cloud nine sometimes!

How about the Abitibi Flyers? Just to name a few, it seemed as if the league needed a National League and an American League.

Remember the All-Star game? It was quite flattering if you were selected to that team.

Well, now only four are left in the Georgetown Industrial Fastball League. Players have become very recognizable. Although the looks of Jim Hall would be recognizable in any era. Face it Jim, you will always be short and bald.

There were a million Peacocks and Fendleys scattered about the league, but now there are only one or two. (Thank goodness!)

This year's line-up of clubs will consist of the ever-tough Bluebirds trying to repeat as league and playoff champs.

Next is Howells, who came ever so close to dethroning the "Birds" in the '88 fall classic. The nucleus of the Plumbers seems to stay pretty close with the Halls, the Sproules, the Sargents, the Kuchmashes and many other almost old-timers.

Apple Auto Glass is still going to give everyone a run for their money. The ever competitive Glassmen still have a lot of good old "Glen Softball" experience amidst their team players.

Lastly, the "Reds" as they are known, will try as they always do to be the spoilers of the league. They should win a lot of games this year and with their "never quit" attitude they could surprise the other three teams.

THIS WEEK'S GAMES
June 7 - Apple vs Reds, 8:30 p.m.; Howells vs Bluebirds, 8:45 p.m.
June 11 - Apple vs Howells, 6:30 p.m.
June 12 - Reds vs Bluebirds, 6:30 p.m.

STANDINGS AS OF JUNE 5
