OUR LANGUAGE

by Jeffrey McQuain

Something infrequent happens seldom or rarely. Among words that mean the opposite of infrequent, the most frequent example can be found in frequent.

Jactation refers to bragging or boasting. Of course, if you already knew this little-used word, you're entitled to enjoy some jactation.

Q. Someone who makes women's hats is called a milliner. Why?

A. Milliner comes from a variant spelling of Milaner, referring to someone associated with Milan, Italy. Fine goods and women's apparel from Milan were among the featured merchandise of milliners when they first wore the label of milliner in 1530.
