

Learning how to put out the fire

Halton Hills residents had the chance to experience life as a firefighter at the department's open house held at the Maple Street station house in Georgetown Saturday. (Clockwise from the top), firefighter Walter Macpherson (left) helps Marie Murray put on the Scott Breathing Apparatus used in smoked-filled areas. Firefighter Steve Terry and Sonja Keg share a birds-eye view of the town while atop an aerial ladder. Firefighter Macpherson forefront and Mrs. Murray really got into the thick of things when they put out this simulated car fire. Senior firefighter Rob Wilson background teaches rookie firefighter Andy Garbutt to use the "jaws of life". (Herald Photos by Ben Dummett)
