

Choral society is back in full swing this year

By LOIS FRASER
Herald Special

The Georgetown Choral Society has started rehearsing for their new season and they are back in record numbers. The choir has 67 members and is growing steadily. Word has it that Knox Church is the place to be on Monday evenings if you enjoy singing and have a keen interest in challenging choral works. The quest for choral perfection has led to the decision for the choir to concentrate on two concerts this year. With a demanding spring concert planned and a full Christmas concert in rehearsal, the choir members feel they must devote themselves fully to these projects. Given a projected tour of Holland this spring, the choir and their capable director, Dale Wood, have their work cut out for them.

The person at the helm of this exciting group is president Barbara Kozler. She heads up the executive committee of vice president Josephine Tawil, treasurer Doug Cole, secretary Soňa Buisman, past president Ian Oldaker and various committees such as music, library, social, publicity and wardrobe. Because the group is growing so rapidly, the Choral Society would appreciate the help of any volunteers in the community who would like to work behind the scenes. If you love music and have some free time please give Barbara a call.

Barbara originally hails from New Zealand, where she was a primary school teacher. Like many people from her country, she decided to tour the world. After touring North America she taught English for a year in Mexico City before continuing on to England. While there she met her husband, Jan Kozler. They came to Canada seven years ago and have two children, Stephan (age 7) and Nadine (age 5). Jan is a graphic designer and owner of PKB Associates in Georgetown. Barbara works full time in the family business and has convinced Jan to donate his services in the design of the Choral Society's posters and programs.

When Barbara moved to Georgetown she looked for an evening outlet to "get her out of the house" after a busy day with children. As a girl she sang in school choirs and figured that the Choral Society's weekly practice was the least demanding of the area's artistic endeavors. Little did she suspect that after three years as secretary she would end up as the group's president. Barbara enjoys the responsibility of being president. She feels the biggest challenge facing the choir is finding facilities to perform in that allow room for a 70-voice choir, orchestra and the larger audience that is required to make a concert a financial success.

The Choral Society invites you to meet Barbara and the choir at their annual Christmas concert. Tickets are now on sale for the Christmas concert which was a sellout last year. The concerts will be held on Nov. 24 in Brampton at the Second Christian Reform Church (McLaughlin and Steeles) and Nov. 25 and 26 at Knox Presbyterian Church in Georgetown. All performances begin at 8 p.m. Tickets are $8 for adults, $6 for students and seniors and are available at Oxbow Books in Georgetown or by calling 877-5815.

Legion Auxiliary general meeting

By FLO CARSWELL
Legion Auxiliary

Four teams went to Erin for Zone Crib on Saturday, Oct. 14, but unfortunately there were no local winners.

Do not forget the general meeting on Thursday, Oct. 19 at 8
