Fiddler's daughters

Imagine raising a family of five daughters today, three of them in their teens. Wouldn't it have been a much easier task at the turn of the century when the family unit was structured so differently?

In Anatevka, Tevya and Golde go about such a task, and of course the tradition dictates that the matchmaker will find the perfect match for each daughter in the proper order.

Playing the roles of the three older daughters are Meg Rosie as Hodel, Christine Ford as Tzeitel and Tricia MacFarlane as Chava.

Christine Ford is a Grade 13 student at Notre Dame Secondary School in Brampton. Christine plays the French horn in the senior band. She first became involved with community theatre in the Holy Cross Parish production of "His Last Days" which was directed by Joe Delguidice (Tevye). She then joined Globe as a member of the chorus in Kiss Me Kate and played the part of niece Ermengarde in Hello Dolly. Christine would like to pursue a career in the theatre and adds, "let's see how it goes."

Meg Rosie is employed in Brampton as a bookkeeper. She is a Terra Cotta resident and a graduate of Sheridan College business administration course. Meg studied conservatory music for 10 years and plays the piano and flute. Her vocal training was achieved at Mayfield Secondary School. After working backstage at Globe's Hello Dolly, Meg was part of the chorus of Some Enchanted Evening. This was her first stage experience.

Tricia MacFarlane is a student at Georgetown and District High School where she has been a member of the Jazz and Concert Chorus for four years. These choirs have taken part in the National Music Fest competitions. Tricia also toured Germany with other students from GDHS last year where they performed two concerts. As a member of Georgetown Little Theatre, Tricia has appeared in Bungalosa, a Christmas Carol and Cinderella in which she played the fairy godmother. She also appeared in the Easter play "Seven Last Words." This is her first show with Globe.

Fiddler on the Roof opens with a gala evening Nov. 16, with performances at 8 p.m., Nov. 17, 18, 23, 24, 25, 29, 30, Dec. 1, 2, matinees Nov. 19, 26.

Tickets are $10 for each performance and are available at Royal LePage Real Estate, 170 Guelph St., Georgetown.
