

It's a bazaar time in town!

Seven bazaars kicked off this year's Christmas season

It was a bazaar Saturday in Halton Hills. Shoppers looking for special Christmas bargains, gifts and fancy foods could stop along almost any point on Highway 7 to discover those hidden treasures. John Graham (top left) of Durham Street's seniors building proudly displays his handmade wood crafts. Bridget Kent (right) of Georgetown shows the deodorized mice that make great Christmas gifts for the bathroom or the bedroom at a bazaar in Holy Cross Church on Maple Avenue. That bazaar featured a sit-down lunch with homemade soup and fresh-baked goodies. Martha Scott and Cathy Martin (top right) made Christmas seem right around the corner with their decorative trees to celebrate the season. The pair participated in the bazaar at the Knox Presbyterian Church on Georgetown's Main Street. (Herald photos)
