

Georgetown welcomed Santa and friends

The Kiwanis Ducks made an appearance at this year's parade but they were in no way a fish out of water.

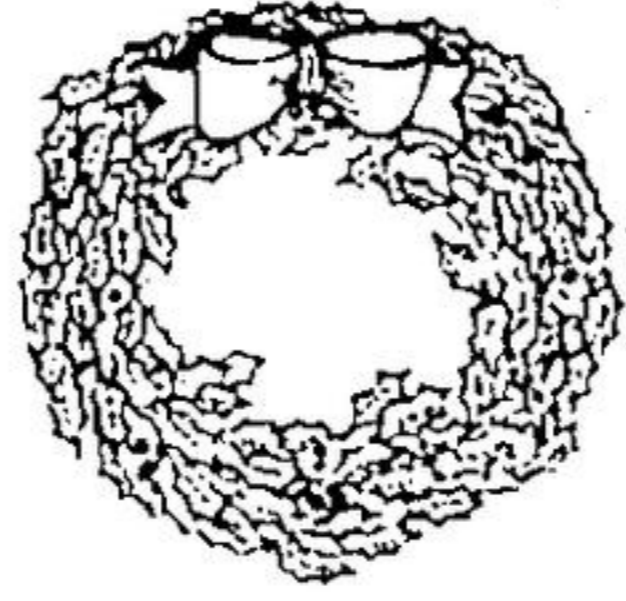

POWER's controversial float showed that Christmas is about giving.

This controversial pro-life float highlighted the spiritual side of Christmas.

Herald photos by Ben Dummett

Herald photos

by

Ben

Dummett

It was safe to say Santa Claus and his reindeer didn't lose their way while making the journey from Acton to Georgetown last week.

The Georgetown Fair float shows that even pigs can get into the Christmas spirit.

Although there was no snow on the ground, the parade was still blessed with a winter wonderland.

The Georgetown Fireflies' camping club featured the caped crusader who took a break from fighting crime and starring in his own movie to ride in this year's Santa Claus parade.