

All are winners in this program

"I like phys ed because it's fun," says 18-year-old Claudia Gebauer, a student at Port Credit Secondary School in Port Credit, Ontario.

Claudia and her 17-year-old schoolmate, Jennifer Morris, both competed in last year's regional Special Olympics for intellectually handicapped people. Claudia won four firsts and one second in the regional meet, and Jennifer went on to compete in the Ontario championships. "My parents came to watch," says Jennifer. "I was kind of scared, but it felt good. It was important for me. I felt important."

Claudia participates in an integrated physical education class at Port Credit Secondary and takes her academic subjects in classes designed for the 10 intellectually handicapped students at the school. Some of her classmates take physical education with a peer tutor or partner—a Port Credit student in the regular school program who helps one-on-one in the gym, pool or playing field.

"More than 30 students applied for 10 physical education partner roles," says Aileen MacDonald, who is responsible for the special students at Port Credit Secondary.

The Port Credit program is a satellite of Applewood Acres, a Mississauga school for 100 intellectually handicapped, senior students. This year, Applewood Acres is one of 69 schools from across the country to win a prestigious new award—the Quality Daily Physical Education (QDPE) School Recognition Award.

The QDPE Award is granted by the Canadian Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation (CAHPER) and Fitness Canada.
