Team suffers cruel fate

M & M Pro Sports falter

Georgetown's M and M Pro Sports major bantam hockey team suffered the cruellest of fate in bowing out of play in the 30th Annual Georgetown Bantam International Hockey Tournament, following a heart-breaking 3-2 overtime loss to Preston in a "C" Division semifinal game.

The winning goal for Preston might best be described as "unexpected" - to say the least - and it spoiled what was turning out to be a fine tournament run for M and M Pro Sports.

The Georgetown "C" Division entry started tournament play on a discouraging note, losing their opener 3-2 to Royal York.

Things brightened considerably from this low point as the Georgetowners thumped Oakville 6-1, then blanked Preston 2-0 to claim first place in their division.

M and M Pro Sports drew Preston again as their semifinal opponent and perhaps the earlier division win distracted the local favorites from the task at hand. M and M Pro Sports led 2-1 after the first period and appeared to have the game well in hand.

For some unknown reason, the Georgetown snipers began firing blanks from this point and Preston was allowed to steal the berth in the "C" Division Final.

Preston tied the game at 2-2 with 9:04 left in the second period and that's how the score stood through third period play.

M and M Pro Sports had numerous scoring opportunities but either misfired or tried to be too fancy when scoring chances arose.

Their biggest problem was shot selection, as a number of shots appeared aimed directly at Preston goaltender Adam McGillivray, who would then flop to the ice, smothering the puck and preventing rebounds.

Preston's winning goal was indeed a strange one.

With just over three minutes to play in the 10 minute overtime frame, there was a faceoff just outside the M and M Pro Sports blueline.

The puck ended up being tossed into the Georgetown end and nestled unmolested, for what seemed like an eternity, directly behind the M and M Pro Sports net. No one on either team seemed to know where the puck was.

Preston's Jody Moore spotted the elusive disk and swooped in for the kill.

With M and M Pro Sports goaltender Tom Diardichuck (who had a fine tournament) looking around the right side of the net, Moore went around the net and tucked the puck into the left side of the goal for the unassisted winning marker.

A frustrated M and M Pro Sports assistant coach Rod Presswood, who was filling in for head coach John Wright who had work commitments, was at a loss to explain the defeat.

"I couldn't believe the winning goal," said Presswood. "But we let them back into the game, then our sticks went cold. You're not going to win many hockey games without scoring goals."

Tim Presswood and Jake Mashinter scored the M and M Pro Sports goals, with Dustin Thompson, Mike Large, Steve Wright and Shawn Pearson collecting assists.
