Baseball Juveniles slam Streetsville 17-7 seven runs in sixth inning clinches game

Georgetown Juvenile player Scott Vandervalk fouls a pitch into the dirt during a game against the Streetsville team at the Fairgrounds main diamond Wednesday evening. The home team played a strong game, scoring seven runs in the sixth inning to win 17-7. Coach Rick Hume hopes his team will continue their winning ways tomorrow against Cawthra and Clarkson. The Cawthra game is at 1:30 p.m. at the Fairgrounds, making up for a rain-out earlier this season, after which they travel to Clarkson for a regularly scheduled evening game. (Herald photo)

After a 22-1 blowout last week, the Georgetown Juvenile baseball team gave their pitcher some run support, beating Streetsville 17-7 on Wednesday evening.

Juveniles coach Rick Hume said the standings haven't been updated recently, but believed the win moves the team into sixth place, just ahead of Oakville.

"There have been a lot of rainouts in the last while for some teams and we only get a standings list once per month, so it's hard to say for sure."

The coach did know that his team played well, especially pitcher Brad Mora, who managed to go the distance, allowing eight hits while striking out six and handing out just three free passes.

"It really helps us out when our guys can go the whole nine innings, since it saves them from extra work. We play our next game against Streetsville on Friday (yesterday), but I'm not sure if I'll put Mora in again."

The game's turning point came in the sixth inning, when the Neilson's Juvenile team sent 11 men to the plate, scoring seven runs to run the count to 15-4.

Travis Gardner led off the inning with a walk, Jeff Hannah followed with a ground out and Kevin Usher reached first, thanks to a catching error by the left fielder.

Scott Vandervalk popped out to second base, but the Georgetown squad then caught fire, scoring seven runs before Streetsville could notch the final out in the inning.

The roof started to cave in when Steve Lee singled to score Gardner from third. Dave Ridley followed with a single right up the middle of the diamond to score Usher and Lee.

"The inning could have ended when Rob Ross grounded to the third baseman, but the guy threw the ball past first base when all he had to do was turn and tag out Ridley who was right behind him," said Hume.

Jim English singled up the middle next, scoring two. A little later, Eddie Doyle walked to load the bases, setting the table for Travis Gardner, who walked to force in a run.

"Jeff Hannah grounded out to end the inning. It was a tough inning for Streetsville, having gone through two pitchers and five of them in the whole game," said Hume.

The game had started out even, with neither team getting on the board in the first. Streetsville scored three in their half of the second, but Georgetown replied with three of their own to tie it up.

The home side took the lead for good in the third inning when they scored two runs. They scored another in the fourth and two in the fifth, while Streetsville managed to reply with only one.

The visitors didn't manage to score in their half of the sixth, but Georgetown did, scoring their seven markers and trashing the opposing pitching staff.

With the score 15-4, Streetsville came back with two runs in the seventh, but the home team duplicated that effort to maintain their 11 run lead, though they did allow one unanswered run in the eighth before the game ended.

After Friday's game against Streetsville, the Georgetown team is scheduled to play at the Fairgrounds against Cawthra at 1:30 p.m. in a make-up game, before heading out to play at that night against Clarkson.

"We've been playing a few double headers to get caught up on our rained-out games, but I'm not too worried about it since we have almost two weeks at the end of the regular season to schedule them as well," said Hume.

Basketball tournament needs 3-player teams

Basketball enthusiasts have a chance to match their skills against some of the best back lot players around at a tournament in Toronto Sept. 1 and 2.

The inaugural streetball amateur three-on-three tournament, sponsored by Coors Light, is open to men and women over 14, at all levels of ability.

The event will be held at the basketball courts next to the Greenwood Race Track (Woodbine and Queen) and is also sponsored by Converse, a shoe manufacturer, which is responsible for the school-aged children, since some of the people involved in the event didn't want beer tied in with minors.

All the different competition levels will consist of teams of similar ages and abilities. It costs $60 for each team (three players and an alternate), which must be registered by Aug. 24. Proceeds go to the Metro Police charities.

The tournament, which has a double-elimination format, involves games that are played to 16 points - two points for a basket from more than 20 feet out and one point inside.

Anyone interested in taking part can call 1-800-263-1781. There are enough spaces available for 400 teams across Ontario.

The activities kick off on Aug. 31 with a celebrity and media competition, which will be opened by former Philadelphia 76ers Julius Erving.
