

Future of Fairy Lake depends on waterfowl and development

The continued use of Fairy Lake in Acton as a recreation spot for Halton Hills residents will depend on the growth of the lake's waterfowl population and the amount of development in the area, said the town's Fairy Lake committee chairman, Norm Elliott.

The waterfowl population and immediate area development are two issues the committee discussed at a meeting yesterday, (Tuesday), on the lake's future. Details from the meeting were unavailable at press time.

But Mr. Elliott explained in an interview Friday, if the waterfowl population is allowed to grow, swimming in any part of the lake will be banned within 10 years.

proved, could be a major source of pollution to the lake.

People have to realize the effect fertilizers that drain into the lake from golf courses and lawns have on the growth of weeds in the lake, said Mr. Elliott. It's so much that weeds leave no oxygen for the fish, explained Mr. Elliott. The chairman said there is still good fishing. "I've heard of people catching pike and bass during the last couple of years."

"The best case scenario would be to maintain the waterfowl population and the lake's recreation uses," he said. But we (the committee) might not be able to guarantee that."

Over the next while the committee plans to expand its membership to include members of the public. Regional health department officials and staff from the province's Ministry of Natural Resources to help determine what would be best for the lake, said Mr. Elliott.

Charges laid

Halton Regional Police have charged a 16-year-old Toronto youth with following too closely after his 1989 Jeep Wrangler (pictured above) went off Highway 7 and tumbled into the ditch July 20 at 6 p.m. Police say the Jeep came up behind another car too quickly, veered onto the shoulder and out of control, landing upside down in the ditch. A tow-truck driver had just finished flipping the jeep upright again. No injuries were sustained. (Herald photo)

Circadian Rhythms: Our Internal Clocks

Circadian rhythms - innate biological clocks - govern almost all of our key functions: sleep, metabolic rate, temperature, alertness, strength, heart rate and blood pressure. Circadian rhythms in those with hypertension must be considered in diagnosis and in monitoring therapy. Certain circadian rhythms also correlate with peak sports performance in afternoon or early evening, when temperature, strength and flexibility are peaking.

ton arena to know how much fecal waste is left behind by the lake's Canada goose population, said Mr. Elliott. When it rains, explained Mr. Elliott, the waste is washed into the lake.

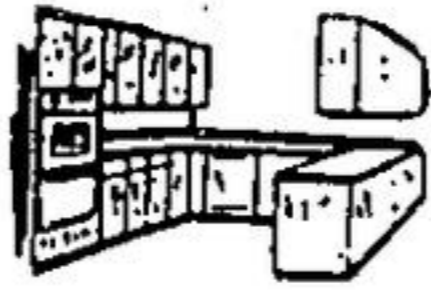

Mr. Elliott also pointed to proposed housing and golf course development in the area, that if ap-
