Pumpkin carving contest

Award winning display

The Canadian Military Studies Museum, located in Limehouse, and owner-operator Frank Grant received singular recognition at the 'Militaria Antiques Xtravaganza' (MAX) show held recently in Baltimore. Competing against exhibitors and exhibits from over 70 countries worldwide, Frank Grant's exhibit of captured German vehicles won the overall exhibitors category, the Exceptional Display Award. Last year, in another category, Mr. Grant's exhibit won third prize out of 1,000 entries.

Mr. Grant and his exhibits almost didn't make it to the Baltimore show because of transportation problems and he extended special thanks to Grant Baker, of Silvercreek Shell, a Ryder Truck rental agent, for coming to his aid at the last minute. Special thanks were also extended to Stephen Krawiec of R. R. Hillsburgh, who journeyed to Baltimore with Mr. Grant and helped set-up the exhibit. (Photo submitted)
