See spot win

It would have been better for South to cue-bid three hearts after East's overcall, on the chance that North might have Q-x of hearts. Instead he bid three no-trump himself, a somewhat rash action that needed a bit of luck to succeed. East was right to stick in the two-heart bid, if for no other reason than to get a good lead.

The opening lead was covered by the queen and king, and declarer held up. It was obvious to East that a low heart would go around to dummy's remaining nine, so he continued with the jack of hearts. Not knowing the location of the heart eight, declarer felt he was headed for defeat. Then he saw a faint chance. If West's heart 10, obviously a lead from a doubleton, was accompanied by the eight, declarer's seven would become a winner. So declarer played the heart ace and was happy to see the eight from West. Next came the king of clubs. Declarer could handle the 4-0 club break, and with East holding only one ace for an entry, the defenders were able to take only one heart trick and their three aces.

Of course South was lucky, but he had to contribute to his own good fortune. If he had carelessly ducked the second heart, the seven-spot would never have done the work that declarer's bridge guardian angel intended for it.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books © 1990, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
