Fire calls

False alarm

Halton Hills Firemen were called out to the Georgetown Legion last Friday night when the fire alarm went off. It was just a malfunction, however, as the building has been having problems with the alarm lately.

Drug trafficking

Crime Stoppers and Halton Regional Police are seeking information in their ongoing fight against drug trafficking.

Many drug users commit other crimes such as robbery and theft to obtain money to buy illegal drugs.

Drug transactions often take place in public places such as plazas, malls, parking lots and street corners and are made without much attempt to hide them from the view of passers-by. Other drug dealers visit local schools to peddle their products to students. More frequently, the drug pushers use their own homes, hoping to avoid the attention of patrolling police officers.

In these situations, neighbors will notice people visiting at all times of the day but only staying a minute or two to make their illegal purchases.

If these individuals can be caught it will help reduce the

Community Forum Rating the NDP Throne Speech

Richard Hampton, Brampton - "It was mildly encouraging. The social aspects of the Throne Speech, especially, were encouraging."

Patti Reid, Georgetown - "They (the NDP) didn't say very much in the Throne Speech. It was very general, very low-key."

Clark Gee, Stewarttown - "The Throne Speech shows the NDP has come back to reality. Changes will take time."

Glen Williams water system not connected to reservoir

By BENDUMMETT

The Herald

Glen Williams should receive a water system to service the residents by the end of 1991 or early 1992 even if a proposed reservoir for Georgetown isn't built by this time, Halton Hills Council learned Monday.

Town councillor Joe Hewitt said last Thursday night at a Glen Williams town hall meeting the reservoir, which would be capable of holding up to 1.8 million gallons of water, would have to be built before Glen Williams would receive a water system.

Halton Region Engineer Vince Suffoletta said Monday the two projects are not connected. The Glen Williams water system will be installed as soon as the province provides its share of the necessary funding to finance the project, he explained.

The Region has already allocated its share of the funding, said Mr. Suffoletta.

He expressed confidence the province would provide the additional funding, telling council "the province says it (the Glen Williams water system), is one of the projects it will fund."

Mr. Suffoletta appeared before council to give an update on the various water and sewer services the Region has proposed for the Georgetown and Acton urban areas.

In Georgetown, these include a water reservoir at Trafalgar Road and Sideroad 22, possible wells on the Tenth Line and in the Silver Creek valley and at Trafalgar Road and Lindsay

Court, and a trunk sewer running through Silver Creek Valley or along Main Street.

Proposals for Acton are the possible expansion of the Acton reservoir and the Prospect Park Water Treatment Plant.

At the end of the presentation Coun. Al Cook asked why the Region is considering the expansion of the water sewer capacity in Georgetown and Acton. In accordance with the town's Official Plan, the Region is responsible for developing new water and sewer systems in the two urban areas. The new systems must be put in place if, as expected, Georgetown's population grows to 40,000 and Acton's to 10,000.

The new systems would also allow Georgetown to service 226 additional hectares of industrial land and Acton to service 55 hectares of similarly zoned property.

Coun. Cook said he asked the question because some people in Halton Hills have indicated they oppose more growth. To stop the Region's work, said Mr. Suffoletta, the town would only have to amend its Official Plan so it didn't recognize expected population growth in either of the urban areas.

Coun. Pat McCarthy wanted assurance from Mr. Suffoletta the wetlands in the Silver Creek Valley wouldn't be damaged because of the trunk sewer and well proposed for the valley.

Mr. Suffoletta told the councillor final approval for either of the projects wouldn't be given until it could be proven neither project would damage any part of the valley or Silver Creek.

The councillor, however, wanted to know if the Region was taking into consideration the cumulative impact the projects may have on the valley if both go ahead.

Mr. Suffoletta said Regional staff is now discussing whether the cumulative impact should be considered. Under provincial legislation the Region is only required to examine each project in isolation.

Mr. Suffoletta went on to explain the commenting agencies asked to review these projects, such as the province's Ministry of Environment, are aware there is concern about the cumulative impact the projects proposed for the valley may have if all are approved.

On the issue of the wells proposed for the Tenth Line and Trafalgar Road and Lindsay Court in Georgetown, the engineer said both are expected to be in operation by May or June of next year.

In Acton, Mr. Suffoletta said, the Prospect Park Water Treatment Plant treats 250,000 gallons of water per day. But it can be expanded to accommodate 500,000 gallons per day if necessary, he explained.

He also said the Acton reservoir may have to be expanded if the Halton Hills Fire Department is permitted to draw more water than is currently done. The fire department is still doing tests to determine if it needs more draw down capacity, said Mr. Suffoletta.
