Council Briefs

Council to review library vacancies

Halton Hills Council learned Monday the town Library Board has agreed to allow council to review all job vacancies to determine if the board should fill vacated library positions.

"The board is fully cognizant of the financial difficulties the town currently faces and understands the temporary necessity council feels to review all job vacancies prior to filling them," wrote library board chairman Jay Jackson in a letter that appeared before councillors Monday.

Orillia resolution supported

Town council voted Monday to support a resolution by Orillia council calling for the provincial and federal governments to provide more funds and education to increase protection for physically, sexually or mentally abused women. Council endorsed the resolution despite councillor Marilyn Serjeanston's claims all levels of government can't afford to increase spending. The councillor qualified her argument saying she recognizes improved service in this area is always necessary but right now there is no extra money available to contribute.

Tax court

Town council will hold a 495 and 496 court during the Dec. 10 council meeting, councillors decided Monday. During a 495 and 496 court, residents can approach councillors and attempt to convince them their property taxes are too high. Council will hold court starting at 7 p.m. at the town civic centre.

Volunteer grant

Town council approved Monday that the Halton Hills Volunteer Centre be granted $1,380 to help the centre sponsor next April's Biannual Recognition Reception in Georgetown during National Volunteer Week. The reception is put on every second year to recognize the contribution made by local volunteers to the community.

Human Rights Day

At the request of the Ontario Human Rights Commission, town councillors voted to proclaim Dec. 10 at Human Rights Day and the week of Dec. 10-16 as Human Rights Week in Halton Hills during Monday night's council meeting.

Seniors apartment building

Construction on an 80-unit seniors apartment building proposed for Main Street and Maple Avenue in Georgetown could start before the end of December, a representative for the developer, Halcco Non-Profit Housing Corporation told council Monday. The spokesperson made this prediction after council approved interim water allocation for the property. The water allocation grant lasts for six months, until May 31, 1991.

Development application

Halton Hills Council learned Monday an application has been submitted to the planning department calling for a gas station/restaurant and office space at Steeles Avenue and the Tenth Line. Town planner, Glen Wellings, said a report on the proposal is forthcoming to council.

Japanese visitors

Twenty-four educators from Japan will visit several Halton Board of Education schools today (Wednesday) through to Friday, say board officials.

The group, composed of principals, vice-principals and teachers, represent a cross section of Japanese communities.

The group decided to visit Halton because of its reputation as a leader in education, wrote Mr. Woodland. "They are primarily interested in Oakville schools."

The visit began with a briefing session at the J.W. Singleton Centre today and the group was then treated to lunch prepared and served by the students of General Brock High School. They visited Brantwood Public School in the afternoon. Brantwood is involved in an active twinning with Daigo Elementary School, Japan.

Thursday and Friday, the group will split up to visit a total of 10 schools. On Friday evening, the visiting group will treat their hosts to dinner to thank the Halton Board of Education.

"All costs of the visit, other than the welcome lunch, are paid for by the visiting delegation," said Brian Woodland. "I'm sure we will all learn from the visit."
