SICK REPORT

On behalf of the Branch membership I took the liberty of sending Christmas cards to all of our sick or recovering comrades, at home or if still in the hospital. I did the same for those on extended care in the Bennett Centre. I dropped in to see Red Roshier on Sunday, who has once again availed himself of the special service at Georgetown hospital, he was sitting up having his gourmet lunch. I expect to see him up and around when I return from our holidays.

My best wishes to all for the Happiest Christmas, Good health and Good fortune throughout the coming year.

Sick Chairman Branch 120, Charles Tutty.

Pet tips for Christmas

Article provided by the Georgetown Animal Clinic.

1. Pointsettias are beautiful at Christmas time, but unfortunately they are quite poisonous to our pets. Try to keep these plants elevated and out of reach of your pets.

2. We all love chocolate at Christmas, and given the opportunity, our pets would too! But remember, chocolate is very poisonous to our pets, and can quickly kill them.

3. Tinsel is a popular decoration that cats find particularly interesting, but it is also dangerous. Cats will readily ingest tinsel, and it can cause severe intestinal abnormalities which require immediate surgical repair. Keep the tinsel well elevated and out of reach of our curious pets.

4. We all tend to over-eat at Christmas time, but it doesn't mean our pets should have a huge feast too! Overfeeding animals, especially at Christmas, often causes vomiting, diarrhea, and in some sad cases (especially the large breed, deep chested dogs) twisted stomach which can rapidly lead to death. Lets stick to feeding them their regular food and minimal treats - they quickly become sick on too much "people goodies".

5. Christmas is a wonderful opportunity to give that special someone or family a new pet.

However, with the excitement of the holidays, and especially Christmas day, our new kittens and puppies are often (unintentionally) not cared for as attentively as they would if given at another time. New pets are often very frightened and unsure in their new surroundings, and the commotion of Christmas can really terrify them. Better wait until after the holidays to give the new pet, when things have started to settle down, and proper care and attention can be given to the youngster. Instead, if planning to give a pet, give a collar or leash, or some pet accessory as an exciting reminder of what is to come!

6. Don't forget to properly secure your Christmas tree. Curious cats and dogs will try to climb into the tree to inspect all those interesting ornaments, only to topple the tree over and break those treasured bulbs, and leaving broken glass all over which is just asking for cut feet, both yours and theirs!!

On behalf of the Georgetown Animal Clinic, we would like to extend our sincere and warmest wishes for a safe and happy holiday season!! Please feel free to contact us if you have any questions. Telephone 877-2258.
