Anne Murray special

CBC-TV has a sure-fire fix when it wants to boost its ratings. It just puts together an Anne Murray special.

One of her specials, Anne Murray's Family Christmas, was CBC's highest-rated variety show of the 1980s.

The 1991 special, which will be unveiled in late February, is Anne Murray in Disney World.

Murray and a collection of guest stars ranging from Julio Iglesias to Patti LaBelle to the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles frolic with the likes of Mickey Mouse.

A highlight of the show is Murray and Iglesias joining voices for a duet version of Elvis Presley's Can't Help Falling In Love.

It airs Feb. 25 at 8:30 p.m.

Joni Mitchell, for many a year the source of some of Canada's most poignant songs, has a new album out March 5 (Geffen Records).

The special features clips from a number of their performances, including their first appearance on the Ed Sullivan Show (1954). Sullivan liked them so much, he had the Canadian comedians make 67 guest appearances on what was the No. 1 variety show in North America.
